The Nez Perce Campaign 1877

Some Nez Perce became farmers and stockmen. Others preferred a freer existence and would not sign treaties or occupy reservations. Under Chiefs Joseph, Whitebird and Looking Glass they fled from General O.O. Howard's troops.

In the early morning gloom of June 17 an advance scouting party under Captain Perry fired upon an Indian truce party at Whitebird Canyon. The Nez Perce decisively defeated Perry's command.

The Nez Perce Chiefs led about 500 of their people towards sanctuary in Canada. Their circuitous route covered 1,200 miles. About 2,000 troops were in the field. The Nez Perce met 2,000 of them in ten engagements.

The campaign ended on October 5. Chief Joseph led his torn people from the ravines and rocks of Bear Paw Battlefield after a five-week siege and surrendered to Colonel Miles and General Howard.

The Nez Perce Encounter

Note the following is text from the sign:
During their fighting retreat toward freedom in Canada, the non-treaty Nez Perce passed directly through Yellowstone National Park in August 1877. Their route followed this creek. When outriders encountered a party of sightseers camped nearby, the Nez Perce held the group hostage for several hours.
Angry at past betrayals, a pair of Nez Perce shot and left for dead George Cowan, but a chief intervened and the rest of the tourists were released unharmed. Six weeks later the Nez Perce surrendered to the U.S. Army in northern Montana. They were then transferred to reservations far from their home lands.

YELL 40151: The sign was created circa 1914 by the US Army Corps of Engineers, the only description for it is: NEZ PERCE CREEK VALLEY SIGN MARKING HOWARD'S "COWAN CAMP."

Note that the following is text from the sign:

Half a mile above this point is the site of General Howard's second camp (August 30, 1877) within the limits of the Yellowstone National Park during his pursuit of Chief Joseph. It was in this vicinity that the TROOPS FOUND MR. COWAN, WHO HAD CRAWLED BACK six miles from the foot of Mary Mountain after having been WOUNDED AND LEFT FOR DEAD BY THE INDIANS. HE HAD PASSED FIVE DAYS WITHOUT FOOD. Gen. Howard named this camp "Camp Cowan."

YELL 128107: According to Aubrey Haines, this sign was removed sometime during WWII, its whereabouts are unknown. A steel pipe, placed there by Mr. Haines, now marks the site. The general locality of the sign is where Nez Perce Creek enters the Lower Geyser Basin.

UPDATE: In May, 2003 the Bison Ecology Management crew found this sign in the vicinity of Mary Mountain.

Past Signage
Chittenden Interpretive Sign

On 8/26/06 (!) Mary Anne Bellingham and Frank Smith were looking for the site where the "Helena Party" had been attacked by a party of the Nez Perce, who were fleeing Oregon, and being pursued by General Howard. A wooden sign marking the site was installed by Chittenden in 1904, but it had not been reported since the 1970's, and was believed to have been destroyed by fire. Remarkably, Bellingham spotted the sign, and immediately recognized its importance.

The sign is 37 3/4" x 24 1/2" overall, with center area 35 1/2" x 21 3/4", and 1" thick. The frame is made of 1 7/8" x 1" stock, with mitered corners. Finishing nails are driven through the frame into the center boards. Four nails are driven through the boards into the tree.

Maximum height of letters is as follows:
2 1/8" ON THIS... Bottom of sign is 63" above ground level.
2 1/2" tourists...
3 3/4" attacked...
2" AUGUST...
2 5/8" and one...
5/32" (irregular) Pt. by Ancil...

Site was revisited on 9/9/06 Mary Anne Bellingham, Frank Smith, Kent Morby, and Erik Hendrickson.

One of several signs erected by H. Chittenden in 1904 to provide Interpretation of key events associated with the Nez Perce in Yellowstone in 1877.

GENERAL HOWARD'S WAGON TRAIN
under Major Spurgin crossed THE CANON OF Cascade Creek at this point.
Major John Pitcher,
Acting Superintendent,
Yellowstone National Park,
Fort Yellowstone, Wyo.

My dear Major:

Two years ago, as you know, I went through the Park and determined a number of points of historic interest on the route of Chief Joseph and General Howard. I have ever since been intending to fix a few signs to mark these places, but I have never had the time to do it. I inclose herewith eight signs which seem to me to be of importance, and if they meet with your approval, cause them to be printed.

Very truly yours,

[Signature]

Captain, Corps of Engineers.
General Howard's headquarters, September 1, 1877. The ford by which the Nez Perces crossed the river is about half a mile distant. Howard did not follow them but took his command down the left bank of the river, over Mount Washburn, and crossed the Yellowstone at Baronet's bridge.

"Spurgin's Beaver Slide."

Half a mile back from the road is the place where Captain W. F. Spurgin, 21st Infantry, 1st General Howard's wagon train down the steep side of the mountain. The marks on the trees, burned in by the ropes used to let the wagons down, are still distinctly visible.

Three fourths of a mile up the valley of this stream is the place where a party of tourists from Helena were attacked by the Nez Perces, August 26, 1877, and one of their number killed.

On this spot a party of tourists from Helena, Mont. were attacked by the Nez Perces, August 26, 1877, and one of their number killed.

OFFICE OF SUPERINTENDENT,

General Howard's wagon train, under Major Spurgin, crossed the canon of Cascade Creek at this point.
At this point, August 24, 1877, the Nez Perce Indians, under Chief Joseph, captured a party of tourists from Radecburg, Mont., including Mr. Geo. F. Cowan. The party were taken up the valley of Nez Perce creek by the trail over Mary Mountain.

This is the site of General Howard's first camp (August 26, 1877) within the limits of the Yellowstone National Park during his pursuit of Chief Joseph. It was near this point that the troops found Mr. Cowan, who had crawled back six miles after having been wounded and left for dead by the Indians. He had passed four days without food.

On this spot, (August 24, 1877) the Nez Perce Chiefs held a council to decide the fate of the Cowan party who had been captured that morning in the Lower Geyser Basin. The party were released, but afterwards recaptured; taken back about a half a mile east of the council ground, and there attacked by the Indians. Cowan was left for dead, Carpenter and the two ladies were taken along as prisoners, and the rest escaped.
