Park Science is a research and resource management bulletin of the National Park Service that reports recent and ongoing natural and social science research, its implications for park planning and management, and its application in resource management. It is published twice annually, usually in the spring and summer, by the Natural Resource Information Division of the Natural Resource Program Center. Additional issues, including thematic issues that explore a topic in depth, are published on occasion. Content receives editorial review for clarity, completeness, usefulness, basic scientific soundness, and policy considerations; materials do not undergo anonymous peer review. Deadline for submissions is January 15 for the spring issue and April 15 for summer. Letters that address the scientific content of an article are welcome; they may be edited for length, clarity, and tone. Mention of trade names or commercial products does not constitute endorsement or recommendation for use by the National Park Service.

Park Science is also published on-line (ISSN-1090-9966). All back issues of the publication, article submission guidelines, and other useful information related to the publication can be viewed and downloaded from the website www.nature.nps.gov/parksci.

Park Science accepts subscription donations from non-NPS readers. If you would like to help defray production costs, please consider donating $10 per subscription per year. Checks should be made payable to the National Park Service and sent to the editor.
