ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

History, Incorporated would like to extend a special thanks to the City of Albany, Planning and Development, in particular Rozanne Braswell, for providing an exceptional work environment, endless assistance, and wonderful lodging arrangements. Rozanne's passion for the continued preservation of Albany's rich heritage is boundless, and we are very grateful for having the opportunity to work with her and the Planning & Development staff on this project. Finally, thank you to all of those residents who showed an interest in the survey and participated in providing historic photographs and helpful information pertaining to the neighborhood.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

This historic district expansion report was conducted as part of an effort to identify and survey all properties 40 years or older located within the Rawson Circle/Park neighborhood in Albany, Dougherty County, Georgia. The primary objectives of the intensive-level survey included the documentation and creation of an inventory of historic resources, the evaluation of potential National Register of Historic Places designations (individual resources and historic districts), and the evaluation of the survey area for inclusion into the existing locally designated Albany Historic District. The latter is addressed in this report.

The historic resources, designed landscapes, and majestic oak-lined streetscapes within the project area are reminiscent of Albany's unprecedented period of suburban growth, and its efforts to promote the beautification of the city; and are characteristic of evolving ideals in residential development and planning throughout the early to mid-20th century.

The pre-defined survey area includes a total of 844 parcels and two parks that are not located within a defined tax parcel. The survey area is comprised of six historic residential subdivisions including Arcadia, Hilsman Heights, Rawson Circle, Rawson Park, Palmyra Heights, and Cleveland Heights. Collectively, the entire survey area is locally referred to as "Rawson Circle/Park." A total of 818 resources, including buildings, parks, and designed landscapes, were identified during the course of this survey project. Twenty-eight (28) parcels are vacant lots that were either once occupied by a non-extant building, or have remained undeveloped land contributing to the overall picturesque setting of the neighborhood. Appendix A includes a list of the 844 parcels (occupied and vacant) and resources within the survey area for a total of 846 line items. Two resources are currently listed in the National Register of Historic Places ("National Register"): Tift Park, and a Lustron home at 711 9th Avenue.

As a result of the intensive-level survey, it is recommended that the locally designated Albany Historic District be expanded to include the entire survey area, with the exception of a few resources located along its western boundary. Of the total of 846 parcels and parks, a total of 53 were determined non-contributing to the possible expansion area.

It is further recommended that priorities for National Register listing of historic districts include the earliest phases of Rawson Circle and Rawson Park, as well as Palmyra Heights (Subdivision A). A number of impressive, two-story mid-20th century apartment buildings are located within the survey area. Further examination of the City's mid-century apartment buildings, within the survey area and beyond, should be considered in order to develop a historic context, and a potential Multiple Property Documentation Form for National Register evaluation.

A number of resources determined to be individually eligible for the National Register based solely on exterior observations were identified in the Historic Resource Survey Report. It is recommended that these resources be considered individual landmark buildings within the historic district expansion area.

I. PROJECT DESCRIPTION

This historic district expansion report is the result of an intensive-level survey in the City of Albany, Dougherty County, Georgia, and conducted as part of an effort to identify and document resources located within what is locally referred to as Rawson Circle/Park.

The documentation of historic resources plays an important role in community planning and the continued preservation of the architectural heritage of Albany. In order to generate a comprehensive inventory of historic resources, the 2014-2015 survey project included a number of objectives:

1) to identify, record, and photograph all resources forty (40) years old or older within the survey boundaries.
2) to identify and evaluate individual properties and districts within the survey area that, on the basis of age and integrity, meet the eligibility criteria for listing in the National Register of Historic Places ("National Register").
3) to identify each property within the survey area (both historic and non-historic) as potentially contributing or non-contributing to the locally designated Albany Historic District; and, based on these results, determine whether the survey area, or portions of the survey area, warrant inclusion within an expanded locally designated historic district.

A locally designated historic district is a type of zoning that helps to "improve property values by stabilizing and enhancing the neighborhood's character, and it benefits property owners by protecting them from inappropriate changes by other owners that might destroy the special qualities of the neighborhood."[1] A local historic district is established by the local government and/or preservation commission. A National Register of Historic Places historic district on the other hand, is primarily an honorary designation. The district has been thoroughly researched and evaluated according to established criteria and determined to by worthy of preservation. A National Register listing in no way restricts a private owner unless the owner seeks federal funds, including rehabilitation tax credits, grant funds, etc.

The analysis and evaluation of information obtained during the survey will contribute not only to Albany's impressive inventory of historic resources, but will benefit future planning and management projects for the preservation of the City's unique historic sense of place.

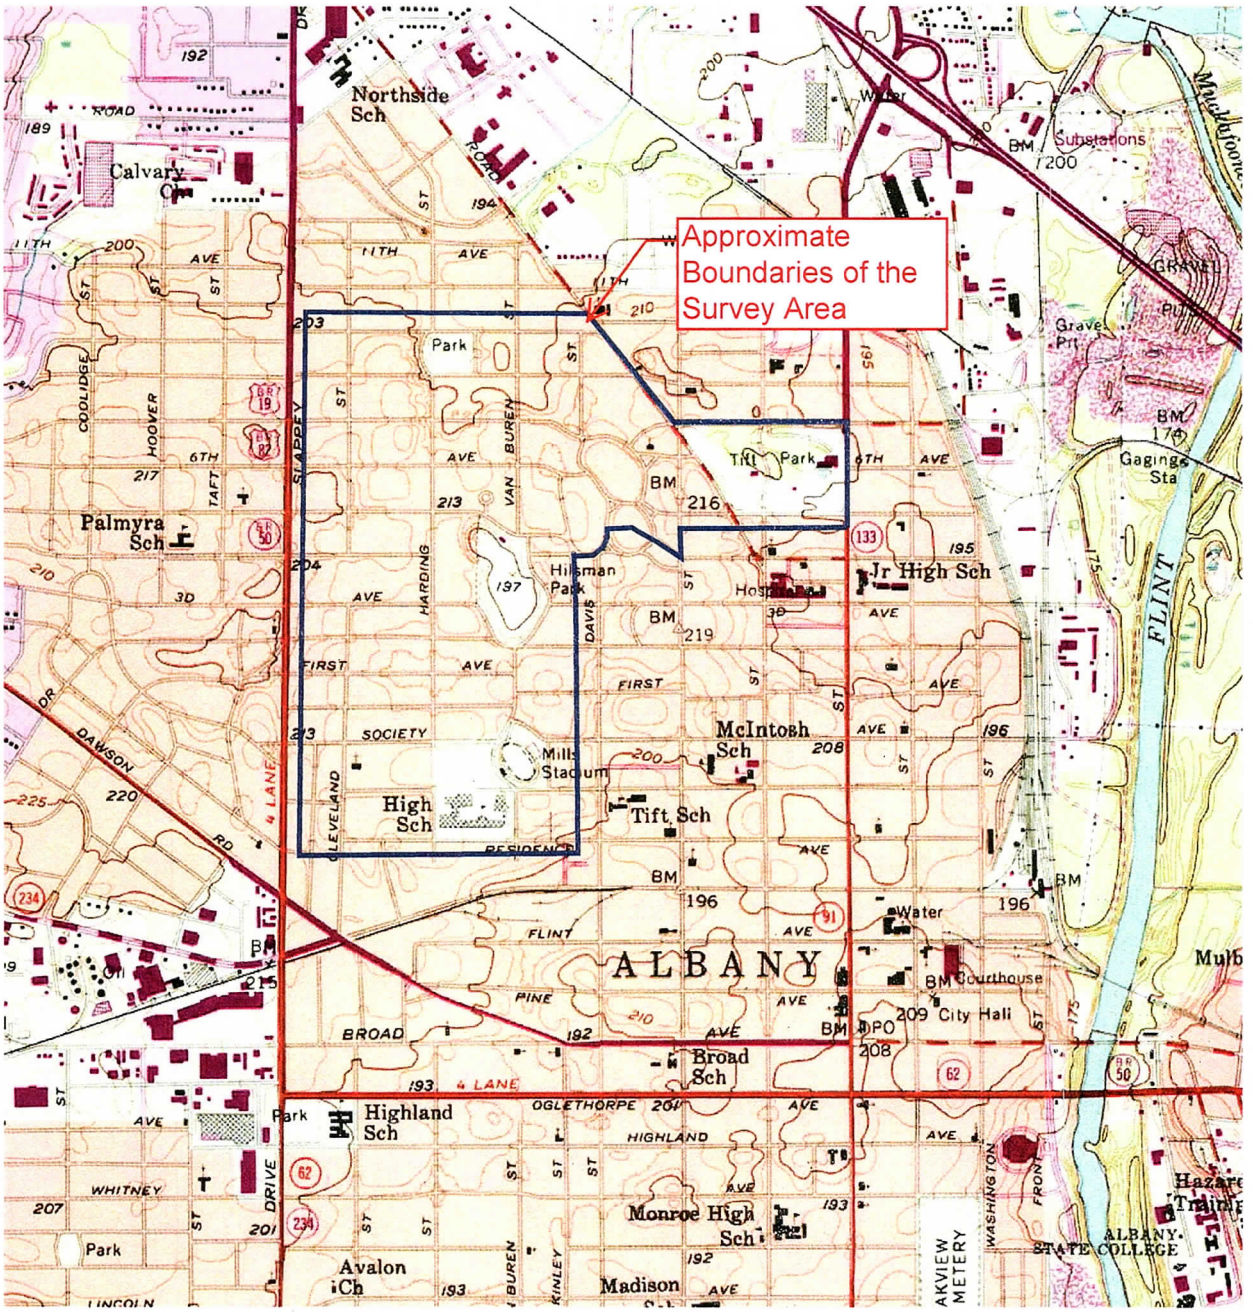

The pre-defined survey area is comprised of six historic residential neighborhoods collectively referred to as "Rawson Circle/Park."[2] The survey area consists of a total of 844 parcels of land and two small parks lacking an assigned tax parcel. Among the 844 parcels, 28 are vacant lots. A total of

[1] "A Comparison of National Register of Historic Places with Local Historic Landmark and District Designations," North Carolina State Historic Preservation Office http://www.hpo.ncdcr.gov/compare.htm accessed June 2015.
[2] Throughout this document, "Rawson Circle/Park" refers to the entire survey area as locally recognized by residents. In discussing the individual historic neighborhoods located within the survey area, each subdivision, or neighborhood, is referred to by its historic name.

53 parcels, including the 28 vacant lots, were determined to be non-contributing elements within the survey area should the entire area be included into the existing local historic district.

The survey area is bounded on the north by the rear property lines of parcels located on the north side of 9th Avenue, on the south by the rear property lines of parcels fronting the south side of Residence Avenue; on the east by Palmyra Road, N. Jefferson Street, and the existing local historic district along McKinley Street; and the west property lines of parcels near N. Slappey Boulevard. Parcels fronting N. Slappey Boulevard were excluded from the survey area as this road is commercially developed and resources along Slappey are generally heavily altered. Figures 1 and 2 identify the approximate boundaries of the survey area. Figure 3 shows the boundary of the existing local historic district as well as the survey area (proposed local historic district expansion area).

The intensive-level field survey was conducted by History, Incorporated in September of 2014. Secretary of Interior qualified Architectural Historians, Jaime L. Destefano and Michelle K. Taylor conducted all phases of this project. High-quality digital photographs of each resource were taken during the field survey. Appendix A lists each address, parcel, or resource, its associated Georgia Natural, Archaeological, and Historic Resource GIS ("GNAHRGIS") number, if applicable, and whether the resource is considered a contributing or non-contributing element to the survey area should the entire area be included within the existing local historic district.

II. RECOMMENDATIONS

Among the survey objectives was to evaluate the survey area and its individual resources for the potential expansion of the existing locally-designated Albany Historic District. In addition, a secondary goal of the project was the assessment of potential National Register-eligible historic districts and individual resources identified within the survey area.

POTENTIAL EXPANSION OF THE ALBANY HISTORIC DISTRICT

The criteria and standards for evaluation of individual resources as contributing or non-contributing elements to the local historic district expansion area were determined prior to the field survey and in consultation with the City of Albany. The following criteria were established to define what resources and parcels constitute non-contributing elements to a potential expansion of the Albany Historic District:

- Vacant parcels
- Date of construction is less than 50 years of age
- Resource greater than 50 years of age that has undergone substantial alterations of both material and form to such a degree that little, if any, historic fabric survives

Among the 844 parcels and two small parks located within the survey area, a total of 53 (6.3%) were determined to be non-contributing elements based on the criteria outlined above. These non-contributing components are scattered throughout the survey area as shown in Figure 4. While a number of properties fronting the south side of 5th Avenue are less than 50 years of age or are vacant parcels, they border the existing historic district, and their exclusion would result in pockets in the district not required to adhere to established design guidelines. The inclusion of these resources or vacant parcels would prevent insensitive development adjacent to important historic resources, including Tift Park. Similarly, the exclusion of the large parcels associated with 730 Tift Avenue,[3] including the adjacent athletic fields, would create a pocket between the existing district and the proposed expansion area. The same strategy would apply to the non-contributing parcels located at 1325 and 1345 North Jefferson Street, which are located on the northeast corner of the survey area boundary and within the National Register boundaries of Tift Park.

Map generated through RuskinArc

[3] It should be noted that 730 Tift Avenue occupies multiple parcels on the Dougherty County tax parcel map. While each of these parcels are identified on the final survey map as non-contributing, they are considered a single parcel for purposes of the survey analysis.

It is recommended that the few non-contributing elements located on the western fringes of the survey area near Slappey Boulevard be excluded from an expansion of the Albany Historic District. These include the following parcels/addresses:

- 1011 1st Avenue West
- 1011 3rd Avenue West
- 1006 5th Avenue West
- 1010 5th Avenue West

Based on the field survey, it is clear that the neighborhoods comprising the survey area, though distinct in some regards, form a cohesive collection of historic residential architecture and planned design elements unique to the city of Albany. With the exception of the properties listed above, the entire survey area reflects an impressive period of growth and prosperity of the City of Albany throughout the early- to mid-20th century. Further, the range of architectural types and styles, and the distinct planned design of each neighborhood epitomize evolving patterns in residential development observed throughout the State of Georgia. Based on our findings, it is the recommendation of History, Incorporated that the expansion of the Albany Historic District follow the boundaries depicted by the dashed red line in Figure 5.

EVALUATING NATIONAL REGISTER OF HISTORIC PLACES ELIGIBLITY

In addition to making recommendations for the proposed Albany Historic District expansion, the Project Team evaluated properties according to the criteria and standards for historic resources established by the National Park Service. This included an assessment of individual eligibility of each surveyed resource for listing in the National Register. In order to meet National Register requirements, the property must be a minimum of 50 years old and retain sufficient integrity to convey the period of time in which it is significant. The National Register recognizes a property's integrity through seven aspects, or qualities.[4] To retain historic integrity, a property should always possess several, and usually most, of the seven aspects. The seven qualities include the following:

- Location The place where the historic property was constructed, or the place where the historic event occurred
- Design Combination of elements that create the form, plan, space, structure, and style of a property
- Setting The physical environment of a historic property
- Materials Physical elements that were combined or deposited during a particular period of time and in a particular pattern or configuration to form a historic property
- Workmanship Physical evidence of the crafts of a particular culture or people during any given period in history or prehistory
- Feeling A property's expression of the aesthetic or historic sense of a particular period of time
- Association Direct link between an important historic event or person and a historic property

The majority, if not all, of the surveyed historic properties (>50 years of age) retain qualities of location, setting, feeling, and association. Single-family residences presently used as a duplex or multi-family dwelling retain quality of association as a residential building. However, those that have been converted into office or commercial space no longer retain the aspect of association. The residential setting and feeling throughout the survey area is unaltered. Properties which have undergone alterations resulting in the loss of historic material (i.e. replacement windows, application of vinyl siding, etc.) were identified as lacking integrity of materials. In the event that a property exhibits insensitive large-scale additions, or has been altered to such a degree that the original form or design of the resource is no longer evident, was determined to lack the quality of design. Finally, numerous architectural styles are characterized by distinct decorative elements or enhancements. When these character-defining features have been removed or altered (ex. Craftsman-style battered posts, Folk Victorian spindlework, Italianate windows, etc.), the quality of workmanship has been compromised.

For those properties that were observed to have retained the majority of these qualities of integrity, an evaluation of their significance based on the National Register criteria was then undertaken. To be considered eligible for the National Register, the property must not only retain integrity, but must possess significance at the local, state, or national level in relationship with similar properties within a specific historic theme, period, or geographic region.[5] To be considered eligible, the property must meet one of the four Criteria. The four criteria are:

A. Are associated with events that have made a significant contribution to the broad pattern of history; or
B. Are associated with the lives of persons significant in the past; or
C. Embody distinctive characteristics of a type, period, or method of construction, or represent the work of a master, possess high artistic values, or represent a significant and distinguishable entity whose components may lack individual distinction; or
D. Have yielded, or may be likely to yield, information important in prehistory or history

Based on the field survey, evaluation of individual resources, and analysis of architectural patterns, the following properties are known to retain integrity and possess significance at the local level. Therefore, these resources appear to be individually eligible for National Register listing pending interior observations and additional research.

It should be noted that this historic resource survey report does not in any way change Albany's existing individual property or historic district listings in the National Register of Historic Places. Any amendments to existing listings and/or the nomination of additional properties or districts, including those recommended herein, must be made through the National Register of Historic Places process according to 36 CFR 60, as amended. Further, recommendations detailed in this report are preliminary, and have not been officially affirmed by GA HPD.

Evaluation of Potential National Register-Eligible Historic Districts

A historic district possesses a significant concentration, linkage, or continuity of sites, buildings, structures, or objects united historically or aesthetically by plan or physical development. A historic district must be significant, as well as being an identifiable entity. As such, it must meet one of the four National Register criteria addressed above. A historic district is defined geographically by boundaries based upon a shared relationship among the properties constituting the district. District boundaries can encompass resources that lack integrity or association with the established significance of the district. These resources are considered non-contributing elements, and must account for less than 50% of all resources within a district in order for National Register consideration.[6] Generally, resources that were not constructed during the established period of significance, and those exhibiting a high degree of loss of integrity are considered non-contributing. Evaluation of the integrity of individual resources within a district is not typically held to the same standards as when evaluating for individual National Register eligibility.

Based on background research, field survey, and analysis of survey data, History, Incorporated identified two neighborhoods that retain their overall integrity and unique sense of place. Each of the identified historic districts appear to be locally significant under National Register Criterion A in the area of Community Planning and Development, and Criterion C in the area of Architecture. These neighborhoods include historic Rawson Circle/Park and Palmyra Heights Subdivision A. In addition to the proposed historic districts, an update to the existing Tift Park Historic District should be considered since it was listed in 1993 in the National Register, over 20 years ago.

[6] Beth Savage and Sarah Dillard Pope, National Register Bulletin: How to Apply the National Register Criteria for Evaluation. National Park Service, US Department of the Interior, Washington, DC, 2009.

Tift Park Historic District

Since its listing on the National Register in 1993, the boundaries of the historic district remain unaltered. However, a few elements have been lost including a ball field and gazebo. The listing includes the two non-historic maintenance buildings at the northeast corner. Constructed c.1985, these elements would remain non-contributing to the district. The 1966 recreational facility located adjacent to the contributing community pool, and once associated with the Boys and Girls Club, could now be considered a contributing element to the social history of the park. Further, a mid-1960s office building in the center of the park should also be re-evaluated as contributing to the character and evolving history of Tift Park. Based on the present survey findings, we recommend that the Tift Park National Register nomination be updated to expand the Period of Significance through 1966 to include significant resources constructed during the 1960s.

Rawson Circle Neighborhood Historic District

The Rawson Circle Historic District includes the earliest Rawson Park expansion and appears to be eligible under Criterion A in the area of planning and development as an excellent representation of early-20th century "suburban" development that focused on creating a natural, park-like setting with winding streets, small gardens/parks, and plentiful vegetation. The neighborhood is also reflective upon the city's beautification efforts throughout the early- to mid-20th century with the planting of oak trees along all of its streets, and the construction of rear alleys. Lastly, the district is eligible under Criterion C for its wide array of middle- to upper-class residential types and architectural styles.

Historic Rawson Circle encompasses the historic planned subdivisions dating from 1922 to 1942. Although properties fronting 9th Avenue and those west of Cleveland Street are presently considered as being part of the Rawson Park neighborhood, these areas were not part of the early- to mid-century planned development of the Rawson Park neighborhood and are later expansions. While lots fronting the south side of 8th Avenue were included in the 1935 Rawson Park Addition, the somewhat later development of 8th Avenue is more directly tied to that of 9th and 10th Avenues, as well as the large 8th Avenue Youth Sports Complex situated between 8th and 9th Avenues. Its streetscape, architecture, and overall period of growth shares greater similarities to the streets to the north rather than the historic Rawson Circle and Rawson Park expansion. As such, it is recommended that 8th Avenue be excluded from the potential National Register historic district.

The recommended boundaries for the Rawson Circle Historic District are shown in Figure 6. The recommended historic district extends beyond the survey area into the existing local Albany Historic District. The area shown on the map lacking marked resources is within the existing local district and was not surveyed as part of this project. The blue markers indicate resources determined to contribute to the potential National Register historic district, the red are non-contributing, and the green are those resources identified as potentially individually eligible for National Register listing.

There are a total of 212 parcels within the surveyed area of the recommended National Register-eligible Rawson Circle Historic District. Among those, eight are vacant lots. These lots were either once the site of a historic resource, or were absorbed into a larger property. As such, these parcels are not assigned a contributing or non-contributing status and are identified on the map with a "?". Therefore, there are a total of 204 resources within the recommended historic district. A total of 192 parcels (~94%) are occupied by residential dwellings including single-family houses, duplexes, and apartment buildings. Included in the proposed district are five planned designed landscapes including small informal gardens and parks that contribute to its park-like setting for which the neighborhood was originally designed. Among the 204 resources within the surveyed area of the district, only six were constructed post-1965 and are considered non-contributing elements for the purpose of this evaluation. Based on our evaluation, the potential Rawson Circle National Register Historic District contains 177 contributing elements, and only 27 (~13%) non-contributing components. Among the contributing resources, 21 are considered potentially eligible for individual listing in the National Register.

The recommended period of significance is 1922 to 1965, beginning with the initial design and construction of the winding streets, informal parks, and planting of oak trees, through the 50-year development threshold. Residential development began toward the end of the 1920s in the original planned development surrounding the two large circles. By the close of the 1930s, an additional 40 residences were constructed, followed by 79 in the 1940s within both the original "Circle," as well as sections of the later Rawson Park addition to the north and west. Development continued during the 1950s, with an additional 61 resources. By the 1960s, the neighborhood was near capacity and only ten new buildings were erected during that decade.

Residential development in the historic Rawson Circle area of the proposed district is typically larger in scale, with greater stylistic embellishments than those observed in the later Rawson Park expansion. Within the entire district, the Ranch house dominates with a total of 89 examples (~44%), followed by the English cottage (28), Georgian house (14), bungalow (13), American Small House (12), and the Georgian cottage (7). Two Lustron homes are located within the proposed Rawson Circle Historic District (805 and 920 7th Avenue).

Plain-style Ranch houses, and resources lacking an academic architectural style account for 102 resources within the neighborhood. Colonial Revival (48) is the most prominent architectural style, followed by English Vernacular Revival (26). Rare occurrences of architectural styles within the Rawson Circle Historic District include Federal Revival, Mediterranean Revival, and Spanish Colonial Revival. Further, a number of resources within the eligible district were designed by noted Classical architects.

Palmyra Heights Historic District

The proposed Palmyra Heights Historic District encompasses all streets, alleys, and lots as planned by the Palmyra Company in 1925. Excluded, however, from the original plan, is the southern portion of Hilsman Park which was absorbed by the Rawson Circle neighborhood. The proposed district does not include Palmyra Heights Subdivision B located to the south. Subdivision B is a later development comprised of lower-income housing, many in relatively poor to fair condition, and a large high school complex with numerous non-historic additions. The proposed boundaries for National Register listing are shown on Figure 7.

Blue: Contributing, Red = Non-Contributing, Green = Contributing and Individually Eligible

The Palmyra Heights Historic District appears eligible under Criterion A in the area of planning and development. Not only is the neighborhood a planned subdivision with a gridded street plan, the mature oak trees lining its streets, sidewalks, and granite drainage and curbing (in some areas) are indicative of the City's beautification efforts during the early-20th century. Palmyra Heights also appears eligible for National Register listing under Criterion C for its array of architectural types and styles reflecting the tremendous period of growth in Albany during the 1930s and 1940s. The distribution of various architectural types and stylistic embellishments depict various patterns of development, particularly with regards to the distinct clustering of lower versus middle-class dwellings.

The proposed Palmyra Heights Historic District encompasses a total of 238 parcels of land, five of which are vacant lots. Therefore, there are a total of 233 resources, not including auxiliary buildings, within the neighborhood. Among the 233 resources, only 15 (approximately 6%) are considered non-contributing for the purposes of this evaluation due to date of construction or significant loss of historic integrity. Many of the non-contributing elements are located along the southern boundary of the district, near Subdivision B.

Palmyra Heights began development in the 1920s with the construction of less than 10 residential dwellings. Development took hold during the 1930s, particularly along 2nd Avenue and the northern section of the district. The most impressive construction boom occurred in the 1940s. The majority of the 1940s construction was within the southern half of the neighborhood. Development continued during the 1950s at a much lower rate with only 25 new buildings being constructed in the 1950s. Only four resources were constructed in Palmyra Heights since the 1950s.

Due to the tremendous boom in construction during the 1940s, it is not surprising that the distribution of American Small Houses (66, or ~28%) and Ranch Houses (41, ~18%) is primarily constrained to the southern half of the neighborhood as demonstrated in Figure 9. The earlier, more elaborate English Cottage type accounts for 56 of the surveyed resources within Palmyra Heights and tend to be located along 2nd and 3rd Avenues. Bungalows (31) follow a similar distribution; however, some are also located along Rosedale and Society Avenues near the southern end of the neighborhood.

Blue = Ranch House, Orange = American Small House, Red= Extended American Small House

Architectural styles within Palmyra Heights are consistent with the types and forms popular during the period of the significance (1922-1966). Of the 233 surveyed resources, 100 lacked an academic architectural style. This lack of style is commonly associated with American Small Houses and Ranch Houses. The distribution of these resources are more or less limited to the southern section of the district. The most popular styles observed in Palmyra Heights are English Vernacular Revival (45) and Colonial Revival (45), followed by Plain-style Ranch houses with a total of 15 resources.

Historic Apartment Buildings of the Rawson Circle/Park Neighborhoods

Due to the number of impressive, early- to mid-20th century apartment buildings, particularly those two-stories in height, it is recommended that the City consider an in-depth survey be conducted, including interior observations and additional research, of the numerous apartment buildings within the present survey area as well as the existing local Albany Historic District. The development of a historic context pertaining to Albany's mid-century apartment buildings, and the possible completion of a National Register Multiple Property Nomination may be a viable option pending further research.

SUMMARY

The historic resources, designed landscapes, and majestic oak-lined streetscapes of the survey area are reminiscent of Albany's unprecedented period of suburban growth (c.1910-1960), its efforts to promote the beautification of the City, and the evolving national ideals in residential development and planning. The wide range of architectural types and styles portrays a City meeting the needs of its citizens, from the lower-income families to the most affluent. Despite modern alterations, and the re-purposing of many of the buildings, the majority of the survey area retains excellent integrity with very few modern intrusions. A number of the residential buildings are threatened by abandonment, and numerous rental properties are deteriorating due to lack of general maintenance. The proposed expansion of the local Albany Historic District would benefit the district by incorporating design guidelines aimed to preserve the historic character and vitality of the neighborhood.

National Register listing of the Rawson Circle Historic District and Palmyra Heights Historic District, more or less an honorary designation, would promote tourism in Albany, and encourage property owners to properly maintain their unique historic buildings, and ultimately, preserve and protect the neighborhood. Further, various state and federal tax incentives are made available to owners of National Register-listed properties to encourage the preservation of historic resources.
