EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The museum collections for the Old Stone House are all cultural and include a variety of items such as domestic furnishings and tools. Specifically, the collection includes furniture, ceramics, glass, kitchen equipment, textiles, textile-working equipment, floor coverings, lighting devices, household accessories, building and archeological artifacts, books, prints, and woodworking tools. These items date from the Federal Era (1770s), the early 19th century (1800-1850s), and the period of National Park Service management (1953 – present). Included are archeological materials systematically excavated from within the site's boundaries and associated field records (circa 1956 - circa 1990s); historic objects associated with various families in Georgetown; building fragments from the Old Stone House collected during its original restoration in the 1950s; and archival collections.

SCOPE OF COLLECTION STATEMENT For
THE OLD STONE HOUSE

I. DELEGATION OF AUTHORITY TO ACCEPT MUSEUM COLLECTIONS

The park superintendent, by delegation, represents the Director of the National Park Service (NPS) and the Secretary of the Interior in accepting title to and responsibility for the acquisition and proper care and management of the museum collection. The superintendent has delegated the day-to-day care of the collection to the cultural resource manager.

NPS policy requires superintendents to accept only unconditional gifts. Only the regional director has the authority to approve conditional gifts for rare exceptions, and then only on a case-by-case basis. (See Director's Order #24: NPS Museum Collections Management, 4.3.15 Unconditional Gifts.)

All acquisitions must receive formal approval from the superintendent before they can be accepted into the museum collection. Upon receipt, all newly acquired objects and related documentation and museum resource documents must be turned over to the cultural resource manager. The cultural resource manager prepares for the superintendent's signature all instruments of conveyance and all letters of thanks, acceptance, or rejection. He or she transmits them, as appropriate, to the donor, lender, vendor, or other source of acquisition.

II. INTRODUCTION

Purpose of the Scope of Collection Statement

A Scope of Collection Statement (SOCS) is a stand-alone document that states the significance of the museum collection. It defines the limits of the collection based on the park's purpose and interpretive objectives as stated in legislation, other mandates, and park-specific planning documents (NPS-28, Cultural Resource Management Guidelines, Chapter 9). The preparation of a Scope of Collection Statement is required by NPS Management Policies (2006, Chapter 5, Section 5.3.5.5), Director's Order-24 (Museum Collection Management), and Director's Order-28 (Cultural Resource Management). The park superintendent must approve the SOCS statement and it must be reviewed every five years.

This SOCS defines the existing collections associated with the Old Stone House (OLST), a National Park Service unit managed by Rock Creek Park (ROCR). Museum collections (objects, specimens, and archival collections) are important park resources in their own right as well as being valuable for the information they provide about processes, events, and interactions among people and the environment (NPS-28, Cultural Resource Management Guideline, Chapter 9). This document identifies the scope of present and future museum collection holdings of the OLST that contribute directly to the understanding and interpretation of the site’s purpose, themes, and resources, as well as those objects the Service is legally mandated to preserve. It is designed to ensure that the museum collection is clearly relevant to the site.

NOTE: OLST is a site within a larger park, ROCR. Hereafter the word “site” will refer to OLST, and the word “park” will refer to ROCR.

Definition of Museum Property

The Old Stone House’s museum collections are acquired through purchase, donation, loan, resource management projects and transfer from other agencies and institutions. Each item considered for inclusion must meet the official definition as described below and, as a result, will receive a higher level of preservation, protection, and care than items on the NPS personal property inventories. The level of accountability mandated by the NPS Chief Curator is also stringent for museum collections (the NPS Museum Handbooks provide policy and guidelines for reporting museum collections to the Chief Curator).

The Departmental Manual (411 DM 1.3) defines museum property (museum collections) as an assemblage of museum objects collected according to some rational scheme and maintained so they can be preserved, studied or interpreted for public benefit. Museum objects include prehistoric and historic objects, artifacts, works of art, archival documents (historical and/or scientific documents collections as defined in the Departmental Museum Property Handbook, 411 DM Volume I, Appendix A, Section A.2.d) and natural history specimens that are a part of museum collections. Elements, fragments and components of structures are objects if they are no longer a part of the original structure. In rare instances, museum dioramas or exhibit cases may be considered museum property (such as dioramas constructed by the Civilian Conservation Corps) or historic fabric.

Museum property does not include those items necessary to display a collection, such as exhibit cases, dioramas, special lighting, graphics, etc.

Legislation, Regulations, and Conventions Related to NPS Collections

The NPS’s legal mandate for acquiring and preserving museum collections is contained in the Antiquities Act of 1906 (16 USC 431-433), the Organic Act of 1916 (16 USC 1 et seq.), the Historic Sites Act of 1935 (16 USC 461-467), the Management of Museum Properties Act of 1955 (16 USC 18f), the Reservoir Salvage Act of 1960, as amended (16 USC 469-469c); the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966, as amended (16 USC 470 et seq.); the Archeological Resources Protection Act of 1979, as amended (16 USC 470aa-mm); the National Parks Omnibus Management Act of 1998 (16 USC 5901). In addition to legislation related to NPS museum collections, the site is also subject to Service-wide NPS policies and guidelines. NPS Management Policies lays the foundation by which the NPS meets its responsibilities toward museum collections and provides policy standards and requirements for preserving, protecting, documenting, and providing access to, and use of NPS museum collections. Director’s Order No. 28, titled NPS Cultural Resources Management Guidelines, states that “[t]he National Park Service permits and encourages the acquisition of museum objects by donation, purchase, exchange, transfer, field collecting, or loan when these objects are clearly significant to an area."

Director's Order No. 24, titled NPS Museum Collections Management, and its accompanying Museum Handbooks ensure that NPS managers and staff have information on the standards and actions for successfully and ethically complying with NPS Management Policies on museum collections. These documents also provide a means of measuring and evaluating progress in preserving, protecting, documenting, accessing, and using museum collections.

Other laws, regulations, directives, and conventions, pertinent to museum collections at Old Stone House include: the Endangered Species Act of 1973, as amended (16 USC 1531 - 1543); the Bald Eagle Protection Act of 1940 (16 USC 668a); the Migratory Bird Treaty Act of 1918 (16 USC 703 - 711); the American Indian Religious Freedom Act of 1978 (42 USC 1996); "Disposition of Federal Records," 36 CFR Part 1228; Preservation, Arrangement, Duplication, Exhibition of Records (44 USC 2109); NPS Special Directive 87-3, the 1983 Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Flora and Fauna (CITES); and the 1970 UNESCO Convention on the Means of Prohibiting and Preventing the Illicit Import, Export, and Transfer of Ownership of Cultural Property (implemented in the United States by P.L. 97-446 in 1983, 19 USC 2601).

Enabling Legislation

The Old Stone House was acquired as a part of the National Capital Parks System (later assigned to ROCR) under Public Law 81-836 (title vested in the United States Government March 17, 1953). This authorized the Secretary of the Interior to "acquire on behalf of the United States...a historic building of great pre-Revolutionary architectural merit known as the Old Stone House." The house was to be "renovated, stabilized, maintained, and preserved" and the Secretary was authorized to "establish a museum on the premises for relics and records pertaining to the early history of Georgetown and the city of Washington."

Mission Statement

National Park Service Mission Statement: The National Park Service preserves unimpaired the natural and cultural resources and values of the National Park System for the enjoyment, education and inspiration of this and future generations. The National Park Service cooperates with partners to extend the benefits of natural and cultural resource conservation and outdoor recreation throughout this country and the world.

Rock Creek Park Mission Statement: Rock Creek Park was established in 1890 by the U.S. Congress to be "perpetually dedicated and set apart as a public park or pleasure ground for the benefit and enjoyment of the people of the United States" and to "provide for the preservation from injury or spoliation of all timber, animals, or curiosities within said park..." (51st Congress, 1890). The mission statement for ROCR builds upon this legislative directive and forms the basis for management decisions within the park. As part of its mission statement, Rock Creek Park "provide[s] opportunities for the public to experience, understand, and appreciate the park in a manner appropriate to the preservation of its natural and cultural resources."

Old Stone House: Old Stone House is a unit of the National Park Service administered by ROCR. The enabling legislation for the Old Stone House serves as its mission statement. It has been under the administrative purview of ROCR since 1981.

Statement of Significance

The Old Stone House is a contributing resource to the National Register of Historic Places (NRHP) listed Georgetown Historic District. It is also individually listed in the NRHP with its significance focused on “its mixed residential-commercial use during the last quarter of the 18th century [and] as a reflection of the social, cultural and economic life of George Town, and as an example of pre-revolutionary American architecture” (NRHP Nomination, 1972).

The primary objective of the OLST is to provide an orientation to Georgetown and the Washington D.C. area, interpretation of Georgetown history, and educational programming concerning historic preservation. This objective was identified in the enabling legislation for the OLST. It also provides visitor orientation and fosters public appreciation for the importance of cultural heritage stewardship at the local, state and national level.

History of the Old Stone House

The Old Stone House, constructed in 1764, is one of the oldest known buildings in Washington, D.C. Despite modifications over the course of two centuries, including during the restoration of the building in the 1950s, it is believed that the OLST has retained an extensive degree of its historic fabric and integrity.

Built by Christopher and Rachel Layman on Lot #3 in 1764 and completed shortly before Christopher's death that same year, the residence was acquired by Cassandra Chew from Layman's widow Rachel in 1767. The Chew family (including in-laws, married daughters and grandchildren) occupied it from that time until the late 1800s.

A prominent Georgetown landowner and self-sufficient widow, Mrs. Chew was a member of the upper-middle class. Her wealth included other property in and around Georgetown, as well as enslaved Africans. Tax records indicate that Mrs. Chew owned six slaves in 1800. Her wealth enabled her to make significant additions to the OLST. She financed construction of the rear kitchen in 1767 and the addition of the second floor between 1767 and 1775.

In 1790, when President George Washington and Pierre L'Enfant arrived to carve out a federal district from the surrounding wilderness, a merchant by the name of John Suter, Jr. was renting the front room of the OLST from the Chews. His father ran Suter's Tavern two blocks southwest on Fishing Lane (now 31st Street, NW), where President Washington held negotiations with local landowners. The connection with the Suter family became intertwined with the history of the OLST, and the legend was born that the house served as headquarters for both Washington and L'Enfant. In later years, this mythical association with America's first president and the man who helped design Washington, D.C. saved the house from the fate of other structures of its era. However, later scholarly research determined that the OLST did not serve as the headquarters for either Washington or L'Enfant.

The Old Stone House was privately owned until 1953, when Congress authorized the purchase of the property by the federal government for $90,000. The purchase was in response to a petition from local residents who had come to regard the house as one of historic significance. At that time, the house accommodated offices and the Parkway Motor Company, a used car dealership whose paved lot sat in what is now the location of the rear garden. The rear garden is not historically accurate to the house. The home and grounds were transferred to the NPS and opened to the public in 1960.

Interpretive Themes

Interpretative themes convey site significance. Primary interpretive themes are key ideas through which the site's nationally significant resource values are conveyed to the public. They connect site resources to the larger ideas, meaning and values of which they are a part. They are the core content on which the interpretive program is based. In the past, the interpretive themes for the OLSH have focused on the history of Georgetown, the history and myths associated with the house, the history of the occupants' lives, and the history of the lives of enslaved people and children's domestic life during the 18th century in Georgetown. As part of its interpretive mission, the OLSH is reflective as one of the last surviving example of 18th century architecture in Georgetown. Portions of the building predate the American Revolution and it serves as an example of a middle-class house. The house is furnished based on historic inventories of one of the owners, Christopher Layman.

As part of ROCH's 2010 Long-Range Interpretive Plan, the future of the interpretation of the OLSH is to include a shift from solely focusing on the association with the inner workings of the occupants of the house and Georgetown, to include exhibits on the understanding of the building and preservation. This plan identifies the following themes:

- Georgetown's history, its people, and places;
- Specific focus toward serving as an ambassador for the cultural preservation efforts of the National Park Service;
- Interpret the importance and need for preserving national, state and local history, and how visitors can help and be part of that mission; and
- Develop exhibits on architecture and historic structure restoration and preservation.

The Long-Range Interpretive Plan (2010) for the park has been completed. It is recommended that the park develop an Exhibit Concept Plan for the OLSH that will reflect the diversity of historic and cultural sites within Georgetown, the history of the architecture, historic preservation, and the building's evolution.

III. COLLECTION BACKGROUND

Purpose of Museum Collections

The purpose of the site's museum collections is to provide valuable information about processes, events, and interactions among cultures, individuals, and the environment; to place objects and specimens within a broader context, through research, analysis, and documentary records; to provide for the greatest benefit and enjoyment by the public; to provide baseline data, serving as a scientific and historical documentation of the site's and the Service's resources, and of the purpose for which the site was established; and to document important events and people in the site's and the nation's history, technological processes, and artistic endeavors.

History of Museum Collection

When the NPS opened the site in 1960, it was used primarily as a living history site. Therefore, in the early years of the house, "such items as reflect the possessions of the families that occupied the dwelling to the period 1810" were collected. The site offered a background for demonstrations of home crafts and the work of artisans that took place during the period 1767 to 1810.

The majority of the collection, apart from archeology artifacts, consists of items acquired to decorate the house for this purpose. Many of these items were donated by various residents of the Georgetown neighborhood of Washington, including some prominent ones like the Belin family of Evermay. Other objects were purchased by the curators. The collection does include a relatively small number of objects associated with the history of the house itself.

The research value of the historic furnishings collection consists of its value in showing the history of the Service's interpretation of the site, as well as the assistance provided to it by prominent people of Georgetown. The collection includes a few relatively rare examples of eighteenth- and nineteenth-century decorative arts and tools (including a cooper's long joiner plane, an early American dough trough, and an apostle teapot) that are unique enough to warrant research in their own right. The house-specific collection, while relatively small, has research value because of its specific association with the house and Georgetown, and its consequent relationship with the interpretive themes.

Archeological materials (except inalienable and communal property) recovered from within park boundaries through systematic collection are National Park Service property and must be retained in the park's museum collection in accordance with 43 CFR 7.13 and NPS Management Policies (December 1988). Associated field data and records also must be maintained as part of the park's museum collection. The archeological artifacts currently in the collection were primarily recovered during excavation work when the house was being restored by the NPS in the late 1950s. The artifacts have recently been entered in the NPS Interior Collection Management System (ICMS); however, a report was never completed. A PMIS statement for the report on the findings has been prepared (PMIS # 106293). When this part of the work is completed, this will provide park managers with a better understanding of the house's occupancy and provide additional information for the development of interpretative programs.

36 CFR 2.5 (g) states that natural history specimen collection permits issued by the superintendent require that specimens placed in displays or collections must be identified by NPS museum labels and must be cataloged into the park's collection. There currently is no natural history collection associated with the OLST; however, any specimens collected in the vicinity of the house or gardens will be accessioned into ROCR's natural history collection. Furthermore, specimens and data derived from consumed specimens must be available to the public and reports and publications resulting from a research collection permit must be filed with the superintendent.

As of November 17, 2010, the entire OLST collection includes 3,320 objects.

IV. ACQUISITIONS

The scope of collecting for the OLST was determined by its enabling legislation, and all subsequent legislation; examination of the cultural evidence and scientific information needed to document and support the site's resource management and interpretive programs; and a review of records to determine if there is any existing evidence of archeological sites and natural history specimens and associated records, mandated by law, regulation and policy to be a part of the site's museum collections.

The site acquires objects for its museum collections by gift, purchase, exchange, transfer, field finds, and loan. Museum objects are acquired, accessioned and cataloged in accordance with the NPS Museum Handbook, Part II Museum Records. Acquisitions are governed by the site's ability to manage, preserve, and provide access to them in accordance with NPS Management Policies (2006, Chapter 5, Section 5.3.5.5); the standards for managing museum objects in Director's Order #28: Cultural Resource Management (1998), Cultural Resource Management Guideline (1997), and Director's Order #24: NPS Museum Collections Management; the NPS Museum Handbook, Part I, Museum Collections, and Part III: Access and Use.

In accordance with NPS policy, the site will discourage gifts with restrictions or limiting conditions. Such restrictions include copyrights; the site will acquire copyrights to all incoming accessions.

Incoming loans will be acquired only for a particular purpose, such as research or exhibition, and for a specified period of time. (Long-range loans should not be accepted). Incoming loans will be acquired, accessioned, and cataloged in accordance with the NPS Museum Handbook, Part II: Museum Records.

The site will not be a partner to, or encourage in any way, the trafficking in illicitly collected materials. All acquisitions must be collected, exported, imported, transported, or otherwise obtained and possessed in full compliance with the laws and regulations of the country of origin, the United States federal government (including NAGPRA), and the individual states of the United States.

The acquisition of firearms included on the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms (ATF) list of prohibited/restricted weapons requires concurrent review by the Regional Curator and the Regional Law Enforcement Specialist.

The park superintendent, by delegation, represents the Director of the National Park Service and the Secretary of the Interior in accepting title to and responsibility for museum objects. The superintendent will ensure that all collections acquired are in keeping with this SOCS before accepting the items as part of the permanent collection. The superintendent bears the ultimate responsibility for the acquisition and proper care and management of the museum collection.

NPS policy requires superintendents to accept only unconditional gifts. Only the regional director has the authority to approve conditional gifts for rare exceptions, and then only on a case-by-case basis. (See Director's Order #24: NPS Museum Collections Management, 4.3.15 Unconditional Gifts.) The superintendent has delegated the day-to-day care of the collection to the cultural resource manager.

All acquisitions must receive formal approval from the superintendent before they can be accepted into the museum collection. Upon receipt, all newly acquired objects and related documentation must be turned over to the cultural resource manager. . . The cultural resource manager prepares for the superintendent's signature all instruments of conveyance and all letters of thanks, acceptance, or rejection. He or she transmits them, as appropriate, to the donor, lender, vendor, or other source of acquisition. These documents must be signed off by the superintendent.

Collecting Priorities

- Primary: Objects, artifacts and specimens, and their associated records, and archives, manuscripts and library materials that were originally onsite, support NPS, ROCR, and OLST mandates and themes, and are in good condition or can be reasonably conserved. Examples include archeological artifacts found on-site.
- Secondary: Objects, artifacts and specimens and their associated records and archives, manuscripts and library materials that, although not originally onsite, are of the same timeframe, similar style and material, and of similar use, and support NPS, ROCR, and OLST mandates and themes, and are in good condition. Examples include period pieces obtained from Georgetown families soon after the National Park Service took over the house.
- Tertiary: objects, artifacts and specimens, and their associated records and archives, manuscripts and library materials deemed of research value in supporting NPS, ROCR, and OLST mandates and interpretive themes. Examples are the resource management documents, such as Historic Structures Reports, Historic Furnishings Report and Collection Condition Survey, as well as copies of photographs and letters reflecting life at the Old Stone House. Reproductions also serve as representative examples of what historically would have been in the house.

Types of Collections

There are two types of collections in the NPS, cultural and natural. Each discipline is divided into collecting categories based on classification, time period, themes and other criteria.

- Cultural: Includes history, archeology and ethnology, and their associated records and archives and manuscripts.
- Natural: Includes biology, geology and paleontology, and their associated records.

The cultural collection must support the following goals. This will ensure that only relevant objects and archival materials are accessioned into the collection. Future growth of the collection should be restricted to items related to:

- Interpretive and/or research needs identified in ROCR's Long-Range Interpretive Plan (2010), exhibit plans, and other applicable site planning documents and resource studies.
- Enhancing the understanding of and promoting increased stewardship of the site's cultural resources.
- Cultural resources baselines/inventorying and monitoring activities.
- Regulatory and compliance activities such as those mandated by the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966, as amended and the Archaeological Resources Protection Act of 1979 (ARPA).

The following guidelines will prevent arbitrary and excessive growth of the site's museum collection, while ensuring that the collection remains relevant to the site's purposes. The development of the museum collection should proceed in close coordination with the regional curator, regional chief of interpretation, and other appropriate regional office resource management specialists.

A. Cultural Collection

The purpose of this collection is to increase knowledge and inspiration among present and future generations through exhibits, research and interpretive programs; support research, resource management and education; provide baseline data of site cultural resources; document changes these resources are undergoing because of internal site conditions and external effects; and to guarantee the protection of important objects whose in-situ preservation cannot be assured.

Objects and archival collections with a direct association to the site are more desirable for inclusion within the collection than similar items without such primary significance. The NPS subdivides its cultural collection into four disciplines: archeology, ethnology, history, and archives and manuscripts. OLSST does not have an ethnographic collection. The list that follows identifies, by discipline, object types appropriate to the site's museum collection and notes current representation.

Archeology Collection

OLST has a large collection of archeology artifacts (2,481 records). These were excavated from the house during its renovation after the NPS acquired it, along with a small number of surface finds. Such collections are also generated in response to cultural resource management requirements related to legal mandates, to development of site facilities, to preservation-related activities, to research requirements, and to interpretive needs. There are no human remains in the collection.

As per 43 CFR Part 7, any archeological materials discovered within the site (except inalienable and communal property, as defined by NAGPRA) are the property of the United States and will be maintained as a part of the site's museum collections.

a. Artifacts and Specimens

Should archeological research projects within the site result in a collection of artifacts, ecofacts, or other data, they will be managed in accordance with 43 CFR Part 7 and the following will apply:

Park staff and visitors should be discouraged from picking up surface artifacts. It is preferred that surface artifacts be left in-situ and their location documented. If materials are collected and brought to site staff, appropriate measures must be taken to ensure that the visitor collects no more material, that precise provenience information is recorded, if possible, and that the objects/data are promptly given to the curatorial staff upon receipt by staff members.

The park will establish one accession number for all such surface finds. The accession will contain, at the minimum, an inventory of the accession, a map showing the location of where the artifact was recovered, who recovered it, when it was recovered, why it was recovered, the artifacts current location and any other pertinent data regarding the material. The artifact will be placed in suitable storage with any other surface find artifacts. The containers in which these artifacts are stored shall be clearly marked with the accession number.

Because the artifact was not scientifically excavated, their immediate value does not warrant cataloging. At such time as a professional archeologist, in relation to a park resource study or excavation, determines that any of the surface find artifacts has archeological value, then the artifact will be cataloged. The museum catalog record will include all available data recorded about the artifact in the accession file.

The archeological site number associated with OLST is Site 51NW15. When the archeological artifacts were collected, no report or analysis of the material was conducted. As a result, a true understanding of the collection, its association with the occupants of the house, and what information can be derived from what was collected has never been developed. The park has requested funding to have the artifacts analyzed and a report written (PMIS #106293).

a. Associated Field Records

At the present time, there are no archeological field records in the OLST collection. However, if any archeological activity takes place at the site in the future, any records that are generated will be accessioned into the collection, according to the guidelines in this document.

All original records associated with archeological collections will be retained as part of the museum collection. These records may include field notes and catalogs, daily journals, drawings and maps, photographs and negatives, slides, sound recordings, draw data sheets, instrument charts, remote sensing materials, collection inventories, analytical study data, conservation treatment records, and computer documentation and data, as well as any other documents generated through archeological activity.

History Collection

The history collection is an important component of the interpretive and resource management programs (839 objects). Only historic material that has a direct association with the OLST is included in the museum collection. When a large quantity of an object type is available, priority is given to acquiring the best-preserved examples. The history collection is based on the site's themes used to establish the categories described below. A complete listing of the collection as of FY 2011 is attached as appendix 1.

a. Future Collections Activity

Future collections activity in this area will concentrate on the acquisition of outstanding examples of objects currently not represented in the collection and deficiencies noted in ROCR's Long-Range Interpretive Plan, future exhibit plans, or other planning documents. This will ensure that the history collection is relevant to the interpretive and research needs of the site. Proposed changes in the interpretative focus for the OLST will require bringing new objects and archival information into the collection. As presented in the 2010 Long-Range Interpretive Plan, the desire is to also present information pertaining to the preservation of the house, its architectural evolution, and the protection of cultural resources by the public.

b. Historic Fabric

When original fabric is removed from a historic structure during a preservation or repair project, a representative portion of the fabric will be preserved and accessioned into the museum collection, along with any associated documentation.

c. Commemorative Events.

Memorabilia from important current or commemorative events are included in the museum collection. Materials from these types of important site activities, such as brochures, will continue to be preserved as they become available.

Archival and Manuscript Collections and Resource Management Records

OLST does not have a separate archival and manuscript collection, nor is there a library located at the site. However, records, including resource management records that are associated with the OLST, are accessioned as part of the larger collection for ROCR. This collection is housed at the Museum Resource Center (MRCE) in Landover, Maryland. There are additional resource management records that are located at various locations in ROCR that have not been evaluated or set aside for accessioning. A systematic survey will determine the location of the records and will allow either the park staff or a contractor to compile and process them.

a. Future Collections Activity

Current and future archival and manuscript collections and resource management records will be managed in accordance with Director's Order #19: Records Management (2001) and the NPS Records Disposition Schedule (2003). The Park's Records Management Committee examines all site files before they are transferred to the National Archives and Records Administration or disposed of, to ensure the retention of copies of important official records in the site. Other materials as acquired, such as materials related to scientific and resource management activities; oral histories, historic resource studies, and similar reports; photographs, blueprints, specifications and other items documenting facility development will also be retained and managed as part of the museum collection.

B. NATURAL HISTORY COLLECTION

OLST has no natural history specimens associated with the site. Any natural history specimens found or collected in the vicinity of the house or garden will be accessioned into the ROCR's natural history collection, not into the OLST collection.

The purpose of a natural history collection is to support scientific research, resource management and education; provide baseline data of park natural resources; document changes these resources are undergoing because of internal site conditions and external effects; provide a database for researchers concerned with resource use by the site's prehistoric occupants; preserve important or locally significant species collected in response to specific research or interpretive needs; and to guarantee the protection of important paleontological specimens whose in-situ preservation cannot be assured.

The natural history collection must support these goals to ensure that only well-documented and appropriate specimens are retained. Three activities generally lead to the collection of natural history specimens. These include:

1. Authorized scholarly research and selective acquisition based on:
 - Needs identified in the site's General Management Plan (2005), Resource Management Plan (1997draft), and other applicable site planning documents and resource studies.
 - Service-wide initiatives such as the Natural Resource Challenge.
 - Enhancing understanding of and promoting increased stewardship of the site's ecosystem.
2. Inventorying and Monitoring Activities
3. Regulatory and compliance activities such as those mandated by the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (NEPA), as amended.

Acquisitions and the future growth of a collection of natural history specimens that are initiated by the park staff and the Center for Urban Ecology will be restricted to specimens and associated records generated through the above criteria. Please see Appendix III for collection and curatorial procedures for natural history collections.

Scholarly research may be conducted by site or non-site scientists. All collecting activities must be in compliance with 36 CFR 2.5, the Research Permit and Reporting System, Director's Order #77: Natural Resource Protection (under development), and NPS Natural Resources Management Guidelines (1991). All researchers must comply with applicable state and Federal laws regulating collecting, document collections, and other associated activities. No collector (including site staff) can work in the park without first obtaining a signed permit. The collection section of the permit application must be completed, documenting where collections of specimens and associated records will be housed. Questions related to collecting with the park should be addressed to the site's research coordinator. Please see Appendix III for collection and curatorial procedures for natural history collections.

Natural resource specimens collected outside the site boundaries will not be included in the collection unless the specimens are required to illustrate interpretive exhibits, to augment specific site-related research projects, or to demonstrate effects on site resources. Written permission from landowners or appropriate officials will be obtained when collecting occurs on their land. This documentation or copies must become part of the museum collection's accession file.

Taxidermy "mounts" and freeze-dried specimens will be obtained only when a specific need (such as for an exhibit) is identified. Specialty collections such as frozen or other types of tissue samples are beyond the capability of the site to preserve. If they are collected and held by other repositories, they will be accessioned and cataloged in the site's collection. Archived soils and other strictly environmental monitoring samples will only be collected as part of authorized research projects.

Strengths and Weaknesses of Existing Collection

The collection currently (2010) contains an extensive number of period pieces and reproductions. Nothing in the collection is directly associated with the original building or owner, Christopher Layman.

The site's Historic Furnishing Plan (1986) outlined many needed objects, based on the inventory of the Layman estate upon his death. A number of objects were obtained in conjunction with these recommendations. Others were collected for the house by various donors during the house's initial opening in the 1960's. The present recommendations in the Long-Range Interpretive Plan (2010) include developing an Exhibit Concept Plan to expand the stories told at the Old Stone House. The Exhibit Concept Plan could recommend a shift to incorporate more exhibits relating to the construction and evolution of the house and the preservation movement. New objects specifically geared toward this theme, as well as architectural artifacts that are derived from the house during past restoration and rehabilitation efforts, would be required.

V. DEACCESSIONING

Deaccessioning is the process of permanently removing NPS museum collections from a NPS site's ownership and custody and should be a rare action. An amendment (1996) to the Museum Act of 1955 broadened the authority of the NPS to deaccession inappropriate or unwanted objects. The NPS Museum Handbook Part II, Chapter 6, provides detailed instructions for deaccessioning museum property. If the superintendent approves the site's requests, objects may be deaccessioned by:

- Transfer to other NPS units or qualified Federal agencies;
- Exchange with other NPS units or qualified Federal agencies;

- Donation of objects to qualified private institutions and non-Federal governmental entities; or
- Voluntary destruction/abandonment of museum property determined to have no value by a review committee

VI. PRESERVATION/CONSERVATION ISSUES

NPS staff considers all items on exhibit significant to the site's mission and present interpretive themes. Therefore they are the highest priority for conservation treatment. This includes items on loan from other museums and institutions. Items in storage are considered of secondary priority for conservation. Every effort will be made to maintain a level of preservation controls appropriate to the specific material types on exhibit or in storage, but when conservation is considered, the following criteria will be used:

- First priority: Artifacts in need of treatment immediately. Conditions threaten the survival of the artifact and/or the well-being of the surrounding collection.
- Second priority: Problems are developing which will require major treatment to preserve the artifact. Future plans should include these artifacts as a priority.
- Third priority: Artifact requires or would aesthetically benefit from attention. The situation is not critical.
- Fourth priority: Artifact requires no treatment or treatment is so extensive that it is not efficient or effective to recommend such.

In May, 2000, conservators from the NPS Division of Conservation at the Harpers Ferry Center conducted a Collection Condition Survey (CCS) of the objects on exhibit in the house. The CCS lists each object according to whether or not it is original and how much conservation work is needed. These lists should be consulted when determining what objects should receive conservation in the future.

VII. MUSEUM COLLECTIONS SUBJECT TO THE NATIVE AMERICAN GRAVES PROTECTION AND REPATRIATION ACT OF 1990

In addition to other actions, the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act of 1990 (NAGPRA), 25 USC 3001-13, requires a written summary of unassociated funerary objects, sacred objects, and objects of cultural patrimony. The Regional Archeologist determined that OLST does not have collections that fall within the scope of the NAGPRA categories and acquisition of such objects by the site is not anticipated.

VIII. USES OF THE COLLECTION

The Old Stone House's museum collection may be used for exhibits, interpretive programs, research, publications, or other interpretive media. The primary considerations for the use of museum objects are the preservation of each object in question and of the collection as a whole.

Researchers and other specialists may examine objects under the conditions and procedures outlined in Director's Order #24: NPS Museum Collections Management, Director's Order #28: Cultural Resource Management (1998), Cultural Resource Management Guideline (1997), and in the site's written "Museum Collections Access Procedures." Outside researchers must submit a research proposal to the superintendent for review by the site's research coordinator and other staff as appropriate.

Any interpretive use defined as consumptive must be authorized in advance, as outlined in Director's Order #24: NPS Museum Collections Management, Director's Order #28: Cultural Resource Management (1998), Cultural Resource Management Guideline (1997), and Director's Order #6: Interpretation and Education (2005). The use of reproductions is preferred to the consumptive use of original objects.

Destructive analysis is a legitimate use of museum collections for approved research purposes when the impact is minor or when the object is common. In both cases, approval by the superintendent is required. If an object is rare or significant, a request for destructive analysis should be reviewed by the regional curator and may be approved only by the regional director, as outlined in Director's Order #24: NPS Museum Collections Management, Director's Order #28: Cultural Resource Management (1998) and Cultural Resource Management Guideline (1997).

Objects may be loaned out to qualified institutions for approved purposes in accordance with NPS Museum Handbook, Part II, Chapter 5: Outgoing Loans. Institutions must meet accepted museum standards for security, handling, and exhibition of NPS museum objects. Sensitive materials may require additional conditions prior to a loan commitment. Expenses related to loans of museum objects, including shipping and insurance, normally are assumed by the borrower.

Photographs of museum objects are made publicly available to provide an indirect use of the museum collection through publications and exhibits (including exhibits on the park's website). Many of the site's artifacts have been illustrated in publications.

All exhibits containing museum objects must have proper security, appropriate environmental controls, and proper mounts to ensure the long-range preservation and protection of the objects.

IX. RESTRICTIONS

Restrictions in addition to those applying to the use of the museum collection outlined in Section IV of this statement are as follows:

In accordance with NPS Management Policies (2006) 7.5.5, "Consultation" and 5.3.5.5 "Museum Collections," and DO #24: NPS Museum Collections Management, curatorial staff should consult with traditionally associated peoples and other cultural and community groups for whom the collection has significance. Archeological objects in the museum collection shall be made available to persons for use in religious rituals or spiritual activities in accordance with 36

CFR 79, Section 79.10c, "Curation of Federally-owned and Administered Archeological Collections." Requests to borrow non-archeological material for religious ritual or spiritual activities will be addressed on a case-by-case basis.

The site will not approve research on human remains and associated funerary objects without the consent of the affected group(s).

In accordance with the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966, as amended (16 USC 470 et seq.), the Archeological Resources Protection Act of 1979, as amended (16 USC 470aa-mm), the National Parks Omnibus Management Act of 1998 (16 USC 5937), and NPS Management Policies (2001) 4.1.2, "Natural Resource Information" and 5.2.3 "Confidentiality," the site may withhold from the public sensitive information concerning: rare, threatened, or endangered species; commercially valuable resources; minerals; paleontological resources; archeological and other cultural resources; objects of cultural patrimony and sensitive ethnographic information; information provided by individuals who wish the information to remain confidential; and the identities of individuals who wish to remain anonymous. Inquiries of this nature will be referred to the regional Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) and Privacy Act Officer for consultation and possible review.

Restrictions may be placed on the publication of images or manuscripts in the museum collection if these materials are subject to copyright and the National Park Service does not hold the copyright.

All endangered, threatened, or rare plants and vertebrate and invertebrate animals will be collected only when accidentally killed or when dead from natural causes. The collection of threatened, endangered, or rare plant and animal species will comply with NPS Management Policies (2006), be in accordance with the provisions of the Endangered Species Act of 1973, as amended, and will be strictly limited according to the applicable rules of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Final disposition of type specimens will be determined at the Servicewide level and will adhere to recognized conventions established for specific disciplines.

The site will not knowingly be a partner to or encourage in any way the trafficking in illicitly collected materials.

Objects will be available for scholarly research purposes that are consistent with the long-term preservation mandate for the collection. Access to the collection will be available Monday through Friday during regular business hours unless special arrangements are made.

Researchers must be aware that certain objects in the collection are covered by copyrights and that permission must be secured from the artists or their agents before using materials. The responsibility for obtaining these permissions is that of the researcher and not the park.

Researcher access to museum objects must be authorized in writing by the superintendent or his or her designee. Any researcher who is given approved access to museum objects shall be accompanied at all times by a member of the museum staff.

X. MANAGEMENT ACTIONS

This Scope of Collection Statement must be reviewed every five years and, when necessary, must be revised to remain supportive of and consistent with any changes in the site's Purpose, Enabling Legislation, Interpretive Themes, and Mission Statement. Appropriate park staff (such as the cultural resource program manager, the chief of resource management and visitor services, and other resource management staff) and the regional curator will review all revisions and then send the revised document to the superintendent for approval.

The park has a Long-Range Interpretive Plan (2010), and provisions from it will be taken into account when revising this Scope of Collection Statement. The collection is in need of an updated Housekeeping Plan, an updated Collection Condition Survey, and a Collection Storage Plan. It is anticipated that the Historic Structure Report will be completed in 2011 by the regional historical architect's office.

A number of objects on exhibit in the house are on long-range loan and could be recalled. These include:

1. 52 objects (mostly furnishings) from Arlington House (ARHO).
2. Three platters from the Belin Family (Evermay) in Georgetown.

APPENDIX II:
ENABLING LEGISLATION FOR THE OLD STONE HOUSE
(September 25, 1950)

Public Law 836-81st Congress, Chapter 1029-2d Session, H.R. 7722

“To Provide for the acquisition and preservation, as part of the National Capital Parks system, of the Old Stone House in the District of Columbia.”

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Secretary of the Interior is authorized and directed to acquire on behalf of the United States, by gift or purchase, a historic building of great pre-Revolutionary architectural merit known as the Old Stone House, located at 3051 M Street Northwest, Washington, District of Columbia, together with the site on which it stands, more particularly described as lot 859, square 1209, containing approximately twenty thousand and forty-eight square feet. In the event the Secretary of the Interior is unable to acquire the property at a price deemed by him to be reasonable, he is authorized and directed to acquire such property by condemnation under the provisions of the Act of March 1, 1929 (45 Stat. 1415).

Sec. 2. The property acquired under the provision of section 1 of this Act shall be renovated, stabilized, maintained, and preserved as one of the outstanding remaining examples in the city of Washington of eighteenth century architecture by the Secretary of the Interior, as part of the National Capital Parks system, subject to the provisions of the Act of August 21, 1935 (49 Stat. 666). The Secretary is authorized to establish a museum on the premises for relics and records pertaining to the early history of Georgetown and the city of Washington and he may accept, on behalf of the United States, for installation such museum articles which may be offered as additions to the museum.

Sec. 3. All Acts or parts of Acts inconsistent with the provisions of this Act are repealed to the extent of such inconsistency.

Sec.4. There is authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this Act.

Approved September 25, 1950.

APPENDIX III:

Natural History Collecting and Curatorial Requirements for NPS and Non-NPS Researchers

Scope of Requirements

The curatorial requirements outlined in this document apply to both NPS and non-NPS researchers. Park-generated research projects and specimens collected by park staff are not exempt from these requirements.

Authority

The policies and procedures stated in this document are authorized by the following NPS policies and guidelines: NPS Management Policies (2006), Director's Order #24 (NPS Museum Collection Management), Director's Order #77 (Natural Resource Management Guideline), Director's Order #77 (Inventory and Monitoring Program), NPS Museum Handbook, Parts I-III and ICMS User's Manual.

Complete text of NPS policies is available at www.nps.gov/policy. Relevant excerpts for natural history collections are presented below. The NPS Management Policies states:

Natural resource collections include nonliving and living specimens and associated field records. If placed in exhibits or retained in permanent collections, nonliving specimens and their associated field records will be cataloged into a park's museum collection. (4:4)

Natural resource collections are managed according to NPS Management Policies, Museum Objects and Library Materials (5:9-11); Security and Protective Measures (5:13-14); and Preservation of Data and Collections and Protection of Research Potential (5:3-4).

Director's Order #24 (NPS Museum Collection Management) requires that the park superintendent ensures that all projects undertaken with the park budget for curation of generated museum specimens. Section 4.3.16 Project-generated Collections states that superintendent's must follow these guidelines:

Require project budgets to include funding for the basic management of collections that are project-generated. Collections management includes cataloging; labeling; conservation examination and treatment (including specimen preparation); initial storage of objects and specimens; and organization and storage of project documentation, including appraisal, arrangement, description, finding aid production and appropriate archival housing.

- Before starting, permitting or contracting a project, specify in writing in the task directive, proposal, agreement, permit or contract, the parties responsible, the designated NPS or non-NPS repository, the collections management tasks and a time schedule for completion.

- Fund subsequent ongoing maintenance costs of collections management from the operating base of the responsible park, center or other repository.
- If project-generated collections cannot be accommodated in available storage space, and new storage space construction is necessary, program to construct new space to accommodate the expanded collection. If interim storage is needed, specify in the project task directive the location of that storage, and state that it must meet NPS standards. Identify the funding source for interim storage.

Director's Order #77 (Natural Resource Management Guideline) states:

A critical element in the preservation of permanently retained natural resource collections is ensuring that early and continuing consideration of curatorial concerns is an integral part of the park's scientific research planning process. Many park research projects produce specimens that may have inherent long-range preservation value. The responsibility for the curation of such specimens and associated data must be determined by a park's scientific and curatorial staff prior to starting a research project and be written into the conditions of each research proposal, cooperative agreement, contract or collecting permit. Planning includes determining provisions for field documentation and preparation of specimens, identifying the recipient NPS or non-NPS repository for the specimens and ensuring that each project funds the cataloging and initial preservation and storage costs.

Definitions

Natural resource museum collection: A collection comprised of permanently retained specimens and samples taken from the living and nonliving components of the natural world and project documentation generated by the collecting and research activities. A specimen without its associated documentation has limited or no scientific value. The decision to permanently retain a specimen in a park's museum collection depends on the purpose of the collecting activity or the recommendations of the researcher/collector in consultation with park curatorial staff. General reference collections, voucher specimens, exhibit specimens and most research specimens are managed as part of a park's museum collection. Natural resource museum collections can include biological specimens, geological specimens, paleontological specimens and environmental samples.

Project Documentation: Data, records, reports and other related information generated as a result of research activities conducted within a park or on museum specimens collected in a park. Natural resource archives may contain field notes, daily journals, maps, drawings, photos and negatives, slides, videotapes, raw data sheets, remote sensing data, copies of contracts, correspondence, repository agreements, specialists' reports and analyses, reports and manuscripts, collection inventories, field catalogs, analytical study data, sound recordings, computer documentation and data, tabulations and lists, specimen preparation records, conservation treatment records and reports on all scientific samples lost through destructive analysis.

Ownership of Collections

All specimens collected for permanent retention, as well as their derivatives and byproducts, remain the property of the National Park Service. Specimens that are to be permanently retained—regardless of where they are kept—must be accessioned and cataloged into the National Park Service's ICMS, and must bear National Park Service labels containing NPS accession and catalog numbers.

Designated Repositories

The majority of the museum collection from the OLST (the exception being the objects on exhibit) is located at the Museum Resource Center (MRCE) in Landover, Maryland. Use of a single repository simplifies collection management and accountability of collections while enabling researchers to access more park specimens at a single location. The National Capital Region (NCR), including OLST, has designated the MRCE as their primary repository for archaeological collections.

There are situations, however, when use of other repositories is appropriate, in furtherance of the National Park Service mission to ensure access and preservation of museum collections. All such repositories must meet NPS standards for the preservation and protection of museum collections. The proposed repository for specimens collected must be discussed with the park's cultural resource staff as part of the permit application process. Anticipated curation costs beyond cataloging (e.g. specimen preparation techniques and supplies, storage cabinet and supply purchases, conservation, etc.) must also be discussed at that time. The National Park Service reserves the right to mandate specific repositories for collections from park property.

Please note that the National Park Service does not loan specimens to individuals—institutional sponsorship is required. All loans of specimens to institutions (for cataloging, research, conservation, exhibit or storage purposes) must be accompanied by the required loan paperwork, approved by the appropriate park superintendent. The maximum time period for any loan is 10 years; extensions or renewals of loans can be granted.

Specimen Collecting

Researchers are required to submit their permit request on-line through the NPS Research Permit and Reporting System <http://science.nature.nps.gov/research/ac/ResearchIndex>. Upon receiving the permit, the research will call ROCR's cultural resource specialist to obtain an accession number. This process allows the cultural resource specialist to keep a better record of the scientific collecting that is currently being undertaken within the park and to ensure that no specimens leave the park without being accessioned. The park accession number will appear on all reports, field notes and correspondence relating to the collection, and on the label of each specimen collected.

During Collecting

The Museum Catalog Worksheet-NH (Form 10-254D) can be used by researchers during field work for documenting pertinent data on-site, thus assuring that the collector has recorded all pertinent ICMS-related data. Data necessary includes the use of longitude/latitude or Universal Transverse Mercator Grid (UTM) coordinates in order to integrate information into the Geographic Information System (GIS). The use of UTM coordinates is required as per Director's Order #77. These databases allow for efficient and effective use of the collection information for park-related management programs, for determining gaps in research needs, and for helping resource managers make decisions and set priorities.

After collecting:

At the conclusion of the field work, the researcher would contact the park's cultural resource specialist to obtain a block of catalog numbers for the specimens that will be permanently retained. The preparation and cataloging of specimens to NPS standards is the responsibility of the principle investigator (permittee) and must follow the guidelines outlined in 36 CFR and the Museum Handbook, Part I (Appendix T) and Part II (Chapters 3&4 and Appendix H), NPS Management Policies, RM77, Natural Resource Reference Manual #77, and Director's Order 24 for Museum Collections.

Cataloging

Cataloging of NPS specimens must be done in ICMS or by using the export template (NHEXPORT.txt) to catalog in MS Access or Excel. Any documentation including reports, field notes and maps must also be catalogued as part of the collection. The cataloging process records the documentary information of the specimen and can serve as an index to additional sources of information. It is the primary property and location record of a natural resource specimen. This information is entered into ICMS, making the information available for future accountability, inventory and research purposes. NOTE: SPECIMENS THAT ARE TO BE CONSUMED IN THE COURSE OF RESEARCH SHOULD NOT BE CATALOGED.

For standard cataloging procedures, refer to the NPS Museum Handbook, Part II, Chapters 3 and 4, Appendix H, and the ICMS User Manual. Electronic copies of these documents are available at www.cr.nps.gov/museum/publications/index.htm.

Specimen Labels

As stated in Director's Order #77 (Natural Resources Management Guideline), NPS specimen labels:

- Become a permanent record and identify the specimen as belonging to the NPS regardless of where the specimen is being stored or used;
- Provide data that are essential to the identification of the specimen and are required for proper cataloging of the specimen; and
- Must be completed by the collector before cataloging.

Specimen labels are provided by the NPS to NPS and non-NPS researchers who collect specimens as part of an approved research project. For guidance on standard labeling procedures, refer to the NPS Museum Handbook, Part II, Appendix H.

Labels must be printed on archival quality (acid-free) paper or Tyvek using permanent ink. All labels MUST contain the appropriate park accession and catalog numbers in permanent ink, in this format:

Accession Number:

ROCR-XXX for Rock Creek Park (any natural history specimens collected in ROCR or any of its administrative units will be accessioned under this collection)

Catalog Number:

ROCR XXXXX for ROCR

Note that the hyphen is necessary to distinguish the accession number from the catalog number. Do not use hyphens in the catalog number.

- The accession number MUST appear on all reports, correspondence and original field records pertaining to the collection.
- Catalog numbers should be cited in the final report when referencing individual specimens.

AFTER Cataloging

The following items must be submitted to NPS within one year of the final date of collecting:

- Any specimens that are to be permanently retained, along with the labels and project documentation, to the repository in which they are to be curated. If the approved repository is not MRCE, the researcher must provide ROCR's cultural resource specialist's office with confirmation that specimens and associated documentation have been deposited.
- An electronic copy of the catalog records (either in ICMS or the appropriate export file) to ROCR's cultural resource specialist's office.
- Copies of all of field records (notes, maps, recordings, etc.) to ROCR's cultural resource specialist's office. Notes, maps and other written or printed matter are to be copied onto acid-free paper. This requirement is a safeguard, in case original materials are accidentally destroyed or lost in the future. Original field records must be retained permanently in association with the collection.

Material Transfer Agreements

All specimens (including anything derived from such material) removed from OLST and any site within ROCR remain federal property. If a researcher would like to send specimens (or their progeny or derivatives) to a colleague outside his or her own laboratory for further analysis, the colleague must complete a Material Transfer Agreement with the appropriate park and also may be required to apply for a Scientific Research and Collecting Permit. No materials can be transferred until the appropriate paperwork has been completed.
