

Louisiana Trust for Historic Preservation advocates, promotes and preserves historic places representing our diverse culture.

Our latest Revolving Fund project:
Judge Gilbert Dupre House in Opelousas.

Since 1979, we have provided support and education to all 64 parishes. Please let us know how we can assist with a preservation project in your area.

Please visit LTHP.org to see our latest projects, properties for sale and links to resources. You can also find information on joining or renewing your membership. We now have monthly online payment options.

If you use social media, follow us on Facebook (@LTHPPreservation) and Instagram (@LouisianaTrust).

Thank you for your support of the Louisiana Trust for Historic Preservation and our work across the state.

Information coming soon for the Spring Ramble in Feb/March 2019!

Thanks to the volunteers who helped with a recent clean-up at the Dupre House.

17. 1812 Hickory Hill

Construction began on Hickory Hill in 1812, for Elizabeth and Captain David Scott McCants, who had moved to Louisiana from Charleston around 1809. It is a mix of Federal and Greek Revival details. The monumental, temple-form design features two round, Doric columns, flanked by square columns at the edges. Red brick walls extend past the main block of the house, to cap the ends of the double gallery. Wooden urns once capped the bases extending above the front gable.

16. 1900 Pipes House

One and a half story Queen Anne house with two turrets, two front gables, each with inset Palladian windows.

10. 1818 Brown Cottage

Believed to be the oldest standing structure in Jackson. Raised English cottage style is typical of many early structures in town. Built by Samuel Brown and Frederick Browder as a store and residence for Brown.

2018 Fall Ramble Sites

1. 1852 Jackson Presbyterian Church

Temple-form church built of red brick with raised brick pilasters, round arched windows and double front doors.

11. 1836 McKowen Store - Charter Street Art Studio

Probably built on the foundation of an older structure. Was a trading post for the area and had a large vault, used to store valuables before the first bank was established in Jackson.

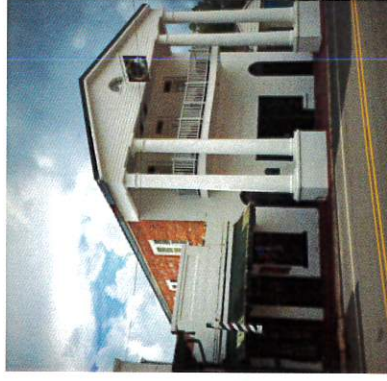

2. 1832 Roseneath

A Greek Revival townhouse with fluted Doric columns. Served as the McKowen High School from 1911 to 1931, before being converted back to a private residence.

12. 1935 Centenary Inn

Hotel constructed using bricks, columns and windows salvaged from the East Dormitory Building of Centenary College. Now operated as a bed & breakfast and event center.

3. ca. 1850 Johnny Jones Store

This building has served as a residence, general store and library over the years. Operated as a store for many years by Johnny Jones, who built the Eastlake cottage next door (not on the tour).
