Introduction

In 2020, the Kentucky Heritage Council, which is the State Historic Preservation Office, awarded Louisville-Jefferson County Metro Government a Certified Local Government Grant. This grant funded survey of 1,331 properties within Beechmont, City of Lynnview, and Cumberland Avenue as well as a summary report. The grant's goal was to understand and record the history of places in Council District 21. This survey is part of a larger preservation project that includes community engagement and education on preservation, potential National Register nominations, and potential financial benefits with Historic Rehabilitation Tax Credits.

The staff of the Metro Historic Landmarks and Preservation Districts Commission and Council District 21 Representative Nicole George created an advisory group that could help inform and steer the survey project. Members of the advisory group include Stefanie Buzan, Leah Hughes, Michael O'Leary, David Pearl, PJ Ray, Betsy Ruhe, and Rachel Roarx. Each member of the team had a direct connection to a neighborhood or history within Council District 21. This advisory group assisted in the proposal review to hire consultants to assist with this work. The team selected Lord Aeck Sargent in conjunction with EHI Consulting and the University of Kentucky Department of Historic Preservation. Together, this team also created a list of Council District 21 "influencers." These were citizens that agreed to help disseminate information on the project and help steer outreach efforts. Much like the advisory group, the influencers had a direct connection to a neighborhood or history within Council District 21.

This summary report is broken into three sections—one for each survey area. Those sections cover the history of each area, explain the survey data and results, provide an evaluation on any possible National Register of Historic Places nomination, and list potential next steps. Just because a building is identified as being culturally or historically significant through this survey, it does not mean anything can or will happen. Additional preservation efforts must be community driven. This report provides information on what those efforts could entail.

As previously mentioned, the historic building survey focused on three survey areas (Figure 1). The first is Southern Heights-Beechmont, which is commonly known as the Beechmont Neighborhood. The Neighborhood is located just south of I-264 and borders the Iroquois Neighborhood. A very small portion of the Beechmont Neighborhood is already listed in the National Register of Historic Places as the Southern Heights-Beechmont Historic District. This is the largest of the survey areas with buildings that reflect a variety of time periods and architectural styles. The second survey area is the City of Lynnview. Located off Preston Highway and Gilmore Lane, Lynnview is a designed, mid-century suburb. It is now a fifth-class city within Louisville Metro. This district is quite compact with homes that all reflect the builder's original designs. The third survey area is the smallest, Cumberland Avenue. It is one street located between S. 3rd Street and Southside Drive within the St. Thomas More Subdivision. The suburb was developed to house workers for the nearby Naval Ordnance in the early 1940s. Today, a little over half of the street is owned by citizens of Vietnamese descent. The influence this culture has had on the District should not be ignored. There are cultural centers, restaurants, stores, and monuments to their heritage. Cumberland Avenue is also a part of that heritage.

Beechmont

History of Beechmont

Louisville's most dramatic physical growth occurred between 1890 and 1917, which pushed the city past its existing borders. By 1890, most of the land in the western and central parts of the Louisville had been subdivided and developed or plans were made to do so. However, the population pressures that demanding increased housing stock were still not met. Thus, developers turned to the southern part of the city as the land had not been developed. A few things came together to make this possible. First, the electric streetcar also facilitated southward development as two major lines provided service to the southern suburbs. The Fourth Street line looped through downtown, moved south toward Churchill Downs, where it then split. One line followed Fifth Street to Woodlawn and Third Street in Beechmont, and the second line moved along the side of the Downs on Central and Queen Avenues to Taylor Boulevard and then to the entrance of Iroquois Park. The second major boom to the south end was the development of Iroquois Park. In 1889, Mayor Charles D. Jacob purchased Burnt Knob, which was a 313-acre tract of forest approximately four miles south of the city limits. Jacob purchased the land with a vision that it would be a park space for the city to enjoy. He also had visions for a “Grand Boulevard” that would connect the park to the City limits. When the Boulevard (now Southern Parkway) was completed in 1893, it accommodated horseback riding, pleasure driving, and cycling with a ban on commercial traffic. The streetcar line extension and the park system spurred quick development in the South End (Historic Landmarks and Preservation Districts Commission 1978).

The Coleman-Bush Company, under the corporate power of the Beechmont Land Company, with the financial assistance of the Louisville Trust Company, developed Beechmont. According to the Central and South survey report, “Originally part of the Highland Park Corporation tract, Beechmont was for some time commonly referred to as old Highland Park. It acquired the name Beechmont from the many stately beech trees which stood in the vicinity. The suburb had its legal origin in Beechmont Addition, which was recorded on November 16, 1891, accompanied by a deed of conveyance from the Highland Park Land Company. While its boundaries expanded considerably over the next three decades, Beechmont was originally demarcated by Wampum Avenue on the north, Southern Parkway on the west, Kenwood Way on the south, and First Street on the east. ...The Coleman-Bush Company’s advertisements, land costs, and amenities all were aimed at attracting a higher class of buyer. Home lots were 50 feet wide and 200 feet deep, nearly twice the size of those in the suburb's neighbor to the east and sold for $300” (Historic Landmarks and Preservation Districts Commission 1978). Figure 2 and Figure 3 show some of the ads published in the Courier-Journal for Beechmont.

THE SUMMIT OF THE GRAND BOULEVARD GRADE IS AT BEECHMONT

And the summit of enterprise, clothed in nature's garb, is perched there to stay and grow into the one superb and high-toned Suburb about Louisville. Go look at it, and if you do not say after a walk beneath the spreading branches of giant beeches and over its grassy slopes that it is the nonpareil, then your eye for beauty is surely dim. BEECHMONT is on the one Grand Drive of Louisville and is the place for elegant homes. Prices remain at the present low figures until Electric Cars are in operation two weeks hence, when they will bound upward. We will take pleasure in driving you to BEECHMONT, whether you buy or not, as every visitor is a walking advertisement ever afterward.

According to the Central and South survey report, “Homes along Southern Parkway required a 100 foot setback, allowing not only for large dwellings but for spacious lawns and gardens. To enhance Beechmont's already park-like setting, a small green strip was platted in the middle of Wellington Court between First and Second streets immediately south of Ashland Avenue. Like Highland Park's green strips, however, the Wellington Court green space failed to materialize and was eventually platted into home lots. But this loss was partially offset by the provisions of a promenade in the form of a wide green median between the traffic lanes of Second Street. With amenities that offered a stark contrast to Highland Park, Beechmont soon became known as the Grand Dame of the south end” (Historic Landmarks and Preservation Districts Commission 1978). Due to the construction of the Grand Boulevard, there was a proliferation of adjacent suburbs, including Southern Heights (Figure 4). In June 1892, the Southern Heights Land Company, headed by W. N. Haldeman, recorded the plat of Southern Heights. Its boundaries were Southern Heights Avenue on the north, Southern Parkway on the east, Brookline Avenue on the south, Peachtree Street on the west, and Livingston Avenue on the northwest. During the next 25 years, the neighborhood's western boundary reached Taylor Boulevard thanks to continued suburbanization and growth (Historic Landmarks and Preservation Districts Commission 1978).

The Beechmont neighborhood is indicative of every housing boom that occurred in Louisville from the 1890s to the 1960s. As the city's population grew so did the need for more housing. With the central and west portions of the city maxed out, developers turned to the South End. The expansion of the streetcar, the development of Iroquois Park and the entertainment venues that popped up around it, drove people to the South End. This trend is evident in the houses along Southern Parkway, 6th Street, and 3rd Street. Many of these exhibit turn of the century forms and styles with Victorian-era details blending with more Craftsman details. Louisville saw another population boom during and after World War I and houses were continuing to be built to suit the needs of the citizens. There is a very large collection of bungalow forms as well as American Foursquare forms. These can be seen throughout the entire neighborhood. There are even enclaves of bungalow houses at Maple Court, Hill Top Court, and Brook Park Drive. These somewhat smaller house types are also dotted along Southern Parkway as infill housing at the time.

Even though Louisville saw an economic downturn during the Great Depression, World War II brought about new industry and a renewed growing population. Again, there was a need for more housing and the South End had land to fill. The 1940s through the 1960s saw a lot of growth in the neighborhood, which is evident in the commercial style architecture along Woodlawn as well as the Tudor Revival, Minimal Traditional, Colonial Revival, and Ranch style homes throughout the neighborhood. Some streets are predominately filled with these homes like Cliff Avenue. Some streets, like 6th Street and Woodlawn Avenue, have an eclectic mix of homes from each of these development periods. Additionally, the 1960s apartment buildings and religious facilities that were built along Southern Parkway and 6th Street reflect this development as well.

Portions of Beechmont and Southern Heights were listed in the National Register of Historic Places in 1983. The district has a rough boundary of Southern Pkwy on the east, 6th Street on the west, Ashland Avenue on the south, and Southern Heights Avenue on the north. According to the nomination, "... the combined architecture of the developments creates a cohesive residential district. The east side of Southern Parkway was the western boundary of the suburb of Beechmont and the west side of the Parkway was the eastern boundary of the suburb of Southern Heights. The two developments were first platted in the early 1890s, but construction did not begin until ca. 1900" (Allgeier 1983).

Beechmont Survey Areas and Results

The next several maps (Figures 5-11) show the boundaries of the neighborhood. The areas that were surveyed as part of this project are delineated in red. The survey areas were divided into seven different parts that attempt to capture a wide variety of history, architectural styles, and development periods. A total of 847 properties were surveyed within the boundaries (Table 1). Appendix 1 contains a table with all of the properties.

Of those a small part of the survey area is already listed in the National Register of Historic Places. Properties listed in the National Register are either contributing or noncontributing. Properties that are contributing are those that still retain and convey their historic significance. Those that are noncontributing are either too altered to do this or they are too new to be historic. Within the current National Register Historic District's 39 properties, 37 are still contributing and 2 are noncontributing. 4526 Southern Parkway is a modern construction making it noncontributing. 5

Hill Top Court has changes on the front façade that have caused it to lose its historic integrity, which means it is now noncontributing.

The survey data does show that the district could be expanded to include much more of the neighborhood. A total of 748 more properties were found to be eligible and able to be added to the Historic District. There are 52 that are not eligible for a variety of reasons, and 8 are undetermined. When a property is undetermined, it generally means that it was under renovation during the survey. It's unclear how that renovation could affect or not affect the building's historic integrity.

Table 2 shows the types of properties surveyed in Southern Heights-Beechmont. The majority of the properties contain single family residences (726 total) with some multi-family as well (55 total). The neighborhood has a strong commercial corridor as well along Woodlawn Avenue and branching out from it. There are a total of 32 commercial/office buildings as well as nine cultural/religious/institutional buildings. Institutional buildings include schools, fire stations, libraries, clubs, etc. There are two parks: Bellevue Park and Cliff Park, but they cross multiple parcels. There are only 14 vacant lots and only seven lots that solely contain parking lots. This shows a very intact and contiguous neighborhood that has not experienced a lot of demolition.

Beechmont National Register of Historic Places Evaluation—"Beechmont & the Suburban Development of Louisville's South End: 1890-1965"

The boundaries of the Beechmont Neighborhood continued to grow over time and include a number of historic properties and suburbs. The National Register-eligible expanded Southern Heights-Beechmont Historic District meets National Register Criterion A under the historic context of "Beechmont & the Suburban Development of Louisville's South End: 1890-1965," which is significant for its development pattern and how it ties to the overall development of Louisville, especially the South End. Thus, the proposed period of significance for the district is 1890-1965. This time period reflects the beginning of the suburbanization and development of Beechmont as well as its continued growth until the mid-1960s when this development slowed. The proposed expanded Southern Heights-Beechmont Historic District retains the seven aspects of integrity which convey its significance: location, design, setting, materials, workmanship, feeling, and association. The following further examines those aspects of integrity.

Integrity of Location: The district displays integrity of location as it occupies the same geographic place since its period of significance.

Integrity of Design: The Southern Heights-Beechmont Historic District is comprised of a few subdivisions that all built off of one another and the growing need for more housing. The design of each subdivision remains largely intact, as the streets are in their original positions lined with buildings. The layout of the lots has not changed since the period of significance. Mature trees are still present within the district which preserves the character of the design. While there is some new construction within the district, it does not negatively impact the overall design.

Integrity of Setting: The portion of the district along Southern Parkway still retains its original parklike character with its deep setbacks, large lots, and mature trees. The surrounding streets have a similar setting and character but on a smaller scale as they are not parkways. Even though today it is surrounded by I-264, new neighborhoods, and commercial development, the neighborhood remains sheltered from drastic change. The fringe areas show some intrusion but it's not enough to say that the district has been negatively impacted.

Integrity of Materials: The historic materials of the district are still present in many of the buildings contributing to it. Materials such as siding, brick, stone, concrete are all still seen on the various buildings throughout. Though new residences have been constructed and older ones have been altered with more modern materials such as vinyl siding, the overall form and general style of the buildings remain the same.

Integrity of Workmanship: The evidence of workmanship within the expanded Southern Heights-Beechmont Historic District is still found in the historic buildings that line its streets. Buildings, some around 100 years of age, which are constructed in styles such as Craftsman, Tudor Revival, Queen Anne, Colonial Revival, and Ranch, as well as vernacular form, all stand as a testimony to the craft of the builders.

Integrity of Feeling: The feeling of Southern Heights-Beechmont is very much intact. Along Southern Parkway, there is a wide parkway, mature trees, and large yards. Whereas the other suburbs around it have more regular size streets, long and narrow lots, and mature trees. The mix of residences of multiple types, commercial, cultural/religious, and institutional buildings provide a feeling of a neighborhood that was a place to be and interact. Longtime residents convey this sense of place and feeling in their memories.

Integrity of Association: The expanded Southern Heights-Beechmont Historic District is associated with an important development time in Louisville's history, which is that of the South End. The District embodies the periods of boom and bust that both fueled rapid development and preserved historic development all at the same time. The expansion of the streetcar line to the South End, the development of Iroquois Park and subsequently Southern Parkway, and the need more housing spurred this growth and preservation. The district's association with these development themes is still very evident.

Beechmont Next Steps

As previously stated, the survey shows that the current Southern Heights-Beechmont Historic District could be expanded to include much more of the neighborhood. What does that mean? The National Register of Historic Places is a volunteer program that places no restrictions on any properties listed in it. It is an honorary program that celebrates the rich history of the United States of America. This means that changes to a property, even demolition, can be made with little to no review. More information on the National Register can be found in Appendix 3 of this report. In Kentucky, being listed in the National Register has an added benefit thanks to the Rehabilitation Tax Credit Program. Tax credits are a financial incentive to encourage investment in historic buildings. More information on this can be found in Appendix 4 of this report. Should the neighborhood be interested in exploring the National Register listing, please contact the Kentucky Heritage Council, the State Historic Preservation Office, at 502-564-7005.

If the neighborhood is interested in protection of the historic resources found there, then they could explore the idea of local designation. Louisville Metro has an ordinance regulating designation of Individual Landmarks and Preservation Districts. The local designation process is a grassroots process that must be initiated by property owners or citizens of Louisville Metro. Individual property owners can request designation of their single property. A petition with 200+ signatures can also request designation of a single property. If an entire district is desired, then that requires over 50% of the owners to agree to designation. What does local designation do? It can place as much or a little restriction on a property as desired. Each designation, whether Individual Landmark or District, can specify a level of review on exterior changes. That review may be as minimal as demolition and new construction review only or as much as review of all exterior changes including siding replacement, window replacement, demolition, new construction, etc. Should the neighborhood be interested in exploring the local designation, please contact Louisville Metro Planning & Design Services at 502-574-6230.

The data found in this survey project can be used for other projects as well. Council District 21 has a number of Historical Markers from the Kentucky Historical Society. These markers help recognize sites, events, and people that are significant to local history. Markers must be based in historical documentation. This summary report and the surveys could provide some of this documentation for new markers. Furthermore, markers are added to the Kentucky History app and can provide tourism for the District. More information on the Historical Markers can be found here (<https://history.ky.gov/explore/historical-marker-program>). Additionally, the Beechmont Neighborhood Association and Council District 21 have a century house plaque program. The survey data can help denote those buildings that are around 100 years of age.

City of Lynnview

History of Lynnview (Excerpt from Brother, et al. 2014)

Lynnview, located at the corner of Preston Highway and Gilmore Lane, was originally platted in the 1920s, with “vast, irregularly shaped lots.” Grady Clay commented in 1953 that the development would today be “considered a holy horror. FHA would turn up its nose and any landscape architect would go into a severe case of the shudders at it. Consequently, the whole tract has been re-platted, with ‘curvilinear’ streets and more shallow lots.” The curvilinear nature is clearly expressed in the plat below of Section 1, the revised plat of which was recorded in 1954, and the subsequent Sections 2 and 3 of the subdivision. Lynnview is both a subdivision and an incorporated city. Lynnview, now a fifth class city, incorporated on November 9, 1954.

David H. Wilson, a Louisville builder, bought the 126-acre tract that would become Lynnview in the spring of 1950. The Evergreen Cemetery Company (the cemetery is located to the north of the subdivision) sold the tract for $110,000. Wilson’s development plans at the time included a five-acre shopping and parking center and a five-acre playground. The development, slated at the time to hold 575 single-family homes when built out, would be geared toward families making $45 to $50 weekly.

Lynnview’s path to approval was mired with pitfalls, most notably the lack of drainage. The developers appeared before the Planning and Zoning Commission more than four times between 1950 and 1952. In the spring of 1952, the proposed Lynnview subdivision was described as “one of the most controversial in the commission’s 11-year history.” The land, according the County Road Engineer J.B. McTamany, wasn’t “suited for a subdivision on of this scale.”

The magnitude of the problem was such that one of the proposed drainage lines in the subdivision would “have a fall of only eight inches in a distance of 1,350 feet.” The subdivision was finally approved in June of 1952, though the developers continued to work on adequate drainage plans.

Grady Clay, Development Editor at the Courier-Journal, undertook a survey of new homeowners in the housing boom of the early 1950s. His subdivision of focus was Lynnview. According to Clay’s sample study, only 13 of the 103 families included in the survey had owned a home before their purchase in Lynnview. These families mainly hailed from the south, southwest, and south central parts of Louisville, where they had mostly been renters.

Trinity Corporation took pains to welcome these first-time homebuyers, producing a small booklet entitled “Your Key to Living in Lynnview” which was provided to each resident (Figure 12). The booklet, featuring drawings of hapless homeowners and their families dealing with all of the exciting aspects of owning a home, covers all of the elements of the newly constructed dwelling. The names and contact information for the plumber and electrician was even provided.

The median price of homes in Lynnview was $10,300 and Clay's study showed that the typical buyer was married, with an annual salary of around $4,200, with one child. Most of the homeowners worked in "industrial production and in distribution and sales" – so most were blue-collar, working class families. A very small percentage of his sample included residents working in the legal, ministry or medical fields.

Although these new homeowners perceived Lynnview as "moving out" from Louisville, and indeed, as part of the country – Clay shrewdly observed that any sense of rural life was bound to be fleeting. Lynnview, he noted, "is like many other new subdivisions around the outskirts of Louisville. Much if not all the open land immediately around it is either platted into subdivision lots, or is being held for development."

Another interesting aspect to the development of Lynnview is the role of the professional architect in the design of the homes. At the same time that subdivisions like Buechel Terrace were being developed (and heavily promoted) with prefabricated homes, the advertising campaign for Lynnview stressed the individual nature of each home, and the fact that they were not prefabs. St. Matthews architect E. W. Augustus designed the homes in Lynnview; several models were offered; the two-bedroom and three-bedroom models were available in five different styles (Figure 13).

Lynnview Survey Areas and Results

The City of Lynnview was not officially surveyed in 2014 when the report discusses its history. The next several maps (Figure 14-18) show the boundaries of the neighborhood. The areas that were surveyed are highlighted in blue and green. All associated residential buildings and greenspaces were included in the survey efforts. A total of 456 properties were surveyed within the boundaries (Table 3). Appendix 2 contains a table with all of the properties.

The survey data does show that a historic district could be created for the neighborhood. A total of 434 properties were found to be eligible to the proposed Lynnview Historic District. Properties that are considered eligible are those that still retain and convey their historic significance. When looking at these buildings, they still appear as they did historically and are not too altered. They represent Lynnview as the mid-century neighborhood it was originally. There are 22 properties that are not eligible for a variety of reasons. Generally, those that are not eligible are either too altered to do convey their historic significance or they are too new to be historic.

Table 4 shows the types of properties surveyed in Lynnview. The majority of the properties contain single family residences (445 total). The neighborhood has a commercial corridor along Gilmore Lane with three commercial buildings and the City Hall building. There are four purposely designed detention basins, and only three vacant lots. This shows a very intact and contiguous neighborhood that has not experienced a lot of demolition.

Lynnview National Register of Historic Places Evaluation—“Lynnview, a post-World War II community developer neighborhood, & the Suburban Development of Louisville’s South End: 1949-1957”

The 2014 survey report states Lynnview is eligible for listing in the National Register of Historic Places under Criterion A for its development as a post-war housing with a community builder, David Wilson and his Trinity Corporation. This most recent survey data concurs with the findings of that report and finds it eligible under the historic context “Lynnview, a post-World War II community developer neighborhood, & the Suburban Development of Louisville’s South End: 1949-1957.” The proposed period of significance for the district is 1949-1957. This time period reflects the beginning of the planning and development of Lynnview as well as its build out, which ended in 1957. The proposed Lynnview Historic District retains the seven aspects of integrity which convey its significance: location, design, setting, materials, workmanship, feeling, and association. The following further examines those aspects of integrity.

Integrity of Location: The district displays integrity of location as it occupies the same geographic place since its period of significance.

Integrity of Design: The Lynnview Historic District was designed as one compact subdivision with curvilinear streets and irregular lot shapes that are shallow. This design remains fully intact as the streets are still in their original configuration. Lots of have not been further subdivided or consolidated. Residences are still built close somewhat close to the street with secondary structures in the rear. The four planned detention basins, which were designed to mitigate severe drainage issues, are also still intact.

Integrity of Setting: The compact, mid-century character dominated the original setting of Lynnview. Even though today it is surrounded by new neighborhoods and commercial development, buffers provided Gilmore Lane and Preston Drive have sheltered the neighborhood from drastic change. Furthermore, a number of properties remain in the same family as their original ownership. They have been handed down to younger generations. These factors all work together to retain the original setting of the district.

Integrity of Materials: The historic materials of the district are still present in many of the buildings contributing to it. Materials such as siding, brick, stone are all still seen on the various buildings throughout. Though new residences have been constructed and older ones have been altered with more modern materials such as vinyl siding and vinyl windows, the overall form and general style of the buildings remain the same.

Integrity of Workmanship: The evidence of workmanship within the Lynnview Historic District is still found in the historic buildings that line its streets. Buildings, which are constructed in a Minimal Traditional form with a vernacular architectural style retain those original characteristics. The roof pitches, footprints (some exception to rear additions), and fenestration configurations all remain mostly intact.

Integrity of Feeling: The feeling of Lynnview is very much intact. The curvilinear streets, irregularly shaped lots, single family homes with consistent setbacks all reflect the developer’s original desired feeling for the neighborhood. Longtime residents recognize this feeling as they tell stories of their lives in Lynnview.

Integrity of Association: The Lynnview Historic District is associated with an important development time in Louisville's history, which is that of the post-war housing boom. As the country recovered from the impacts of World War II, there was a significant need for more housing, but not just any housing, new housing. This trend brought about many new subdivisions. However, Lynnview is also significant for its association with a community developer and builder David Wilson and his Trinity Corporation. As Lynnview is very much reflective of its original design, it also reflects its association with significant historic events in Louisville's history.

Lynnview Next Steps

As previously stated, the survey shows that the City of Lynnview is eligible for listing in the National Register of Historic Places. What does that mean? The National Register of Historic Places is a volunteer program that places no restrictions on any properties listed in it. It is an honorary program that celebrates the rich history of the United States of America. This means that changes to a property, even demolition, can be made with little to no review. More information on the National Register can be found in Appendix 3 of this report. In Kentucky, being listed in the National Register has an added benefit thanks to the Rehabilitation Tax Credit Program. Tax credits are a financial incentive to encourage investment in historic buildings. More information on this can be found in Appendix 4 of this report. Should the neighborhood be interested in exploring the National Register listing, please contact the Kentucky Heritage Council, the State Historic Preservation Office, at 502-564-7005.

If the neighborhood is interested in protection of the historic resources found there, then they could explore the idea of local designation. Louisville Metro has an ordinance regulating designation of Individual Landmarks and Preservation Districts. The local designation process is a grassroots process that must be initiated by property owners or citizens of Louisville Metro. Individual property owners can request designation of their single property. A petition with 200+ signatures can also request designation of a single property. If an entire district is desired, then that requires over 50% of the owners to agree to designation. What does local designation do? It can place as much or a little restriction on a property as desired. Each designation, whether Individual Landmark or District, can specify a level of review on exterior changes. That review may be as minimal as demolition and new construction review only or as much as review of all exterior changes including siding replacement, window replacement, demolition, new construction, etc. Should the neighborhood be interested in exploring the local designation, please contact Louisville Metro Planning & Design Services at 502-574-6230.

The data found in this survey project can be used for other projects as well. Council District 21 has a number of Historical Markers from the Kentucky Historical Society. These markers help recognize sites, events, and people that are significant to local history. Markers must be based in historical documentation. This summary report and the surveys could provide some of this documentation for new markers. Furthermore, markers are added to the Kentucky History app and can provide tourism for the District. More information on the Historical Markers can be found here (<https://history.ky.gov/explore/historical-marker-program>).

Cumberland Avenue

History of Cumberland Avenue

Cumberland Avenue is one street within the St. Thomas More Subdivision, which was developed by the Fada Realty Company. The subdivision is located west of the Louisville Naval Ordnance Station and is comprised of nine blocks of housing. Starting in 1941, the Station provided maintenance and equipment for the United States Navy. Since the end of the Cold War, the Station transitioned to the Greater Louisville Technology Park where contractors still assist the government with manufacturing equipment. As the Ordnance grew, the need for employees grew as well. Thus, the St. Thomas More Subdivision was developed (Buzan and McCandless 2007). Edgar Archer and A.A. Meder who were owners of the Archer-Meder Corporation, a real estate group, created the Fada Realty Company to develop the subdivision. It was platted in 1942 with building constructed starting almost immediately (Figure 19).

Council District 21 is very diverse in its population. There are numerous refugee populations, immigrant populations, and citizens that are second or third generation American born. This is due in part to the proximity to Catholic Charities, which is a nonprofit that works closely with refugee and immigrant populations. This is also due to the former Americana Apartments, which also contained the Americana World Community Center. The Center was established in 1990 “in response to the growing international population in Louisville, partially due to increased refugee resettlement in the city, Americana was originally housed in four apartment units, where many of the refugee, immigrant, and low-income families of Louisville were living. The founder of Americana went door to door in the apartment complex, listening to the stories and struggles of the community members. From there, Americana’s community-based programs were born” (Americana World Community Center n.d.).

The Urban Institute reported Louisville resettled 600 Vietnamese refugees during fiscal years 1994-2004, which represented 5% of all refugees welcomed to the city (Figure 20). The same report noted that Vietnam was one of the most highly represented countries of birth for immigrants (not refugees) to Louisville in 2004. “The three most common countries of birth for immigrants in 2004 were Mexico (11,000), Vietnam (5,000), and India (5,000)” (Capps, et al. 2004). These numbers are different from the figure below as they are for immigration and not refugee resettlement, which are captured differently in data.

Table 3: Countries of Birth for Refugees Resettled in or Moving to Louisville, Federal Fiscal Years 1994-2004

Country	Inflow	Percent

NOTES: The Federal Fiscal Year runs from October 1 to September 30. Inflow numbers—which include both refugees resettled directly to Louisville and those moving to Louisville after initial resettlement somewhere else in the United States—are rounded to the nearest 100, and totals might not add up because of rounding.

In 2020, there were 2,128 Vietnamese immigrants in Jefferson County, representing 3.4% of all foreign-born residents in the city. Over the last five years, the Vietnamese immigrant population in Louisville grew by 554. Over the last decade, Louisville’s Vietnamese immigrant community has remained largely stable, hovering around 2,000 (Table 5) (US Census Bureau n.d.).

Table 5. Vietnamese immigration population (US Census Bureau n.d.).

Jefferson County	2010 Estimate	2015 Estimate	2020 Estimate
Total foreign-born population:	41,927	50,641	61,871
Vietnam:	2,087	1,574	2,128
Share of immigrant population that is Vietnamese:	5.0%	3.1%	3.4%

In the 1990s, Cumberland Avenue saw an influx of Vietnamese home ownership. Many of these new homeowners had moved from the Americana Apartments to Cumberland Avenue. As one family moved, so did the next and so on. Vietnamese restaurants and stores also opened in the area by and for these families. At least 15% of the Vietnamese population in Council District 21 were Catholic. Thus, St. John Vianney Catholic Church erected a 7’ statue of Our Lady of La-Vang in an effort to help Vietnamese parishioners feel welcome in the Church. Local artist Le Pham designed the statue and Vietnamese sculptor Quan Phan sculpted it in eight months (Buzan and McCandless 2007). The Vietnamese people and culture in the South End have shaped the area's recent history and are part of what makes the area historically and culturally significant.

Cumberland Avenue Survey Areas and Results

Cumberland Avenue was part of the historic building survey project to capture the World War II housing type but to also capture the cultural history of a portion of the Vietnamese population in Council District 21. The map (Figure 21) shows the boundaries of the survey.

A total of 28 properties were surveyed within the boundaries (Table 6). All of these properties were single family residences, and all are considered eligible to the proposed Cumberland Avenue Historic District. Properties that are considered eligible are those that still retain and convey their historic significance. When looking at these buildings, they still appear as they did historically and are not too altered. They represent Cumberland Avenue as the World War II development it was originally. Furthermore, the survey found that of the 28 total houses on the street at least 16 are owned by citizens of Vietnamese descent.

Cumberland Avenue National Register of Historic Places Evaluation

The survey data shows that Cumberland Avenue is eligible for listing in the National Register of Historic Places under Criterion A for its relationship to the development of the South End of Louisville through the Naval Ordnance history as well as Vietnamese cultural history. This eligibility is reflected in two historic contexts: “St. Thomas More Subdivision & the mid-20th Century Suburban Development of Louisville’s South End: 1941-1955,” and “Cumberland Avenue & the late 20th Century Vietnamese Cultural History of Louisville’s South End: 1993-2013.” This time period reflects the beginning of the planning and development of Cumberland Avenue as part of the St. Thomas More Subdivision as well as its shift to Vietnamese ownership, which began in 1993 and still occurs today. These historic contexts will need to be better developed with key properties identified if National Register listed is desired. The proposed Cumberland Avenue Historic District retains the seven aspects of integrity which convey its significance: location, design, setting, materials, workmanship, feeling, and association. The following further examines those aspects of integrity.

Integrity of Location: The district displays integrity of location as it occupies the same geographic place since its period of significance.

Integrity of Design: Cumberland Avenue is one street within a compact subdivision with normal city streets and rectangular lot shapes that are shallow. This design remains fully intact as the streets are still in their original configuration. Lots of have not been further subdivided or consolidated. Residences are still built close somewhat close to the street with secondary structures in the rear.

Integrity of Setting: The compact, regularly spaced lot character dominated the original setting of Cumberland Avenue. Even though today it is surrounded by new neighborhoods and commercial development, buffers provided Southside Drive and S. 3rd Street have sheltered the neighborhood from drastic change.

Integrity of Materials: The historic materials of the district are still present in many of the buildings contributing to it. Materials such as siding, brick, stone are all still seen on the various buildings throughout. Though new residences have been constructed and older ones have been altered with more modern materials such as vinyl siding and vinyl windows, the overall form and general style of the buildings remain the same.

Integrity of Workmanship: The evidence of workmanship within the Cumberland Avenue Historic District is still found in the historic buildings that line its streets. Buildings, which are constructed in a Minimal Traditional form with unique architectural flourishes on each house to differentiate them retain those original characteristics. The roof pitches, footprints (some exception to rear additions), fenestration configurations all remain mostly intact.

Integrity of Feeling: The feeling of Cumberland Avenue is very much intact. The rectangular lots, single family homes with consistent setbacks all reflect the developer's original desired feeling for the neighborhood. Cumberland Avenue retains that feeling but also that associated with the more recent cultural influence of the Vietnamese residents who began moving there in the 1990s.

Integrity of Association: The Cumberland Avenue Historic District is associated with an important development time in Louisville's history, which is that of the World War II housing boom. As the country ramped up efforts for World War II, there was a significant need for more housing, but not just any housing, new housing. This trend brought about many new subdivisions much like St. Thomas More. However, Cumberland Avenue is also significant for its association with a change in District 21's recent history, which is that of refugees and immigration. A little over half of the homes on the street have been and currently are owned by citizens of Vietnamese descent. The influence this culture has had on the District should not be ignored. There are cultural centers, restaurants, stores, and monuments to their heritage. Cumberland Avenue is also a part of that heritage.

As previously stated, the survey shows that Cumberland Avenue is eligible for listing in the National Register of Historic Places. What does that mean? The National Register of Historic Places is a volunteer program that places no restrictions on any properties listed in it. Conclusions

The existing Southern Heights-Beechmont Historic District can be expanded to include the new properties that were surveyed in this project. A total of 748 more properties were found to be eligible and able to be added to the Historic District. There are 52 that are not eligible and 8 are undetermined. The National Register-eligible expanded Historic District meets National Register Criterion A under the historic context “Beechmont & the Suburban Development of Louisville’s South End: 1890-1965.” It is significant for its development pattern and how it ties to the overall development of Louisville, especially the South End. The proposed expanded Southern Heights-Beechmont Historic District retains the seven aspects of integrity which convey its significance: location, design, setting, materials, workmanship, feeling, and association.

The City of Lynnview survey data does show that a historic district could be created for the neighborhood. A total of 434 properties were found to be eligible to the proposed Lynnview Historic District. Properties that are considered eligible are those that still retain and convey their historic significance. There are 22 properties that are not eligible for a variety of reasons. Lynnview is eligible for listing in the National Register of Historic Places under Criterion A under the historic context “Lynnview, a post-World War II community developer neighborhood, & the Suburban Development of Louisville’s South End: 1949-1957.” It is significant for its development as a post-war housing with a community builder, David Wilson and his Trinity Corporation. The proposed Lynnview Historic District retains the seven aspects of integrity which convey its significance: location, design, setting, materials, workmanship, feeling, and association.

Cumberland Avenue was part of the historic building survey project to capture the World War II housing type but to also capture the cultural history of a portion of the Vietnamese population in Council District 21. The proposed Cumberland Avenue Historic District retains the seven aspects of integrity which convey its significance: location, design, setting, materials, workmanship, feeling, and association.

The historic building survey work funded by the 2020 Kentucky Heritage Council Certified Local Government Grant, is part of a larger preservation project that includes community engagement and education on preservation, potential National Register nominations, and potential financial benefits with Historic Rehabilitation Tax Credits. Council District 21 and the South End of Louisville has long been underrepresented in preservation efforts in Louisville Metro. This survey work and subsequent survey report aims to change that. Major events in Louisville history are tied to these areas and should be celebrated. The information provided in this report as well as possible next steps for the residents, will assist in citizens in their continued preservation efforts.

National Register of Historic Places Frequently Asked Questions

What is the National Register of Historic Places?

The National Register of Historic Places is the official list of the nation's historic places worthy of preservation. Properties listed in the National Register include districts, sites, buildings, structures, and objects that are significant in American history, architecture, archaeology, engineering, and culture. These historic places can be significant at the national, state, or local level. The National Register was created through the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966 and is maintained by the National Park Service.

What are the criteria for listing a property on the National Register?

- Your individual property or a group of properties may be eligible for the National Register if it represents the work of a master architect; is characteristic of a significant architectural movement; or if it is associated with significant events or persons in local, regional, or national history.
- Properties must typically be greater than 50 years old to be listed on the National Register, unless they are exceptionally significant.
- A group or collection of properties can be eligible together as a Historic District. A Historic District must meet the same criteria listed above.

What are the benefits of listing my historic property?

- A National Register listing is an honor that signifies that your property is an important part of America's cultural heritage and worthy of preservation.
- Listed properties may qualify for grants, tax deductions for donation of protective easements, or tax credits for qualified rehabilitation activities (see below).
- Consideration of impacts to your property from federally funded or licensed undertakings, as well as a mandate to minimize, avoid, or mitigate impacts to your property per the provisions of the National Historic Preservation Act.

What are the restrictions of listing my historic property?

- The National Register does not restrict a property owner's private property rights.
- Owners of National Register properties can remodel, renovate, sell, or even demolish their property with no restrictions. However, significant modifications may result in removal from the National Register.
- The federal, state, or local governments regulate alterations to historic properties when government funds have been invested. If you have not received government grant funds or tax benefits (grants, tax credits, etc.) then you have no restrictions as a homeowner.

Can I apply for grant money or tax credits?

- Income-producing properties (including rentals) may be eligible for a 20% federal income investment tax credit through the Federal Historic Preservation Tax Incentives program. To qualify, properties must undergo rehabilitation according to set preservation standards.
- In Kentucky, National Register property owners, not just income-producing, may be eligible for a historic rehabilitation tax credit through the Kentucky Heritage Council, the State Historic Preservation Office (SHPO).
- Owners of listed properties may apply for federal, state, and local historic preservation grants, when available.

How will listing on the National Register affect my property value?

Listing on the National Register generally does not decrease property value and, in some cases, may actually increase the value or marketability of a property.

Can I still modify, remodel, or renovate my historic property after listing?

Yes. Unless your home is subject to the above restrictions (receiving federal tax credits, protected under a local historic preservation ordinance, etc.), listing on the National Register does not restrict your right to modify your home. Severe alterations may, however, result in removal from the National Register.

What if I don't want my property listed?

- Any owner or partial owner of private property who chooses to object to listing must submit to the State Historic Preservation Office (SHPO) a notarized statement certifying that the party is the sole or partial owner of the private property, as appropriate, and objects to the listing.
- When an individual nominated property belongs to a single owner, the property will not be listed if the owner objects. If the property has multiple owners, each owner gets one vote. The majority vote will decide.
- When a district is nominated, each owner or partial owner has one vote regardless of what part of the property or how much property the individual owns. The majority vote will decide. An individual property owner cannot opt out of a nominated district to which the majority of owners have not objected. If a majority of the private owners of the properties making up a nominated district should object, the district or property will not be listed.
- If a property cannot be listed in the National Register due to owner objection, the property is not eligible for federal preservation grants or tax credits until the objections are withdrawn and the property is listed.

- If a property cannot be listed in the National Register due to owner objection, the State Historic Preservation Officer (SHPO) will submit the nomination to the Keeper of the National Register for a determination of eligibility for listing. If the property is determined eligible, then you still receive consideration of impacts to your property from federally funded or licensed undertakings, as well as a mandate to minimize, avoid, or mitigate impacts to your property per the provisions of the National Historic Preservation Act.

"A listing on the National Register of Historic Places is an honor. A source of pride for you and your family, this special recognition from the federal government can only give your old house the prestige it deserves as an important part of our American past."

Historic Rehabilitation Tax Credits

Updated May 2022

The Kentucky Heritage Council/State Historic Preservation Office (KHC) administers the Kentucky Historic Preservation Tax Credit in partnership with the Kentucky Department of Revenue, and the Federal Historic Rehabilitation Tax Credit in partnership with the National Park Service.

What is a tax credit?

A tax credit differs from a tax deduction in that a tax deduction lowers the amount of income subject to taxation, while a tax credit is a dollar-for-dollar reduction in income tax liability. Taxpayers are urged to seek the advice of a qualified tax professional before proceeding with any rehabilitation tax credit project.

The Kentucky Historic Preservation Tax Credit Program offers:

- Up to 30% credit for qualified rehabilitation expenses (QREs) for owner-occupied residential properties. A minimum investment of $20,000 up to a maximum of $400,000 per project is required, with the total potential credit capped at $120,000.
- Up to 20% credit for qualified rehabilitation expenses for commercial projects and all other properties, requiring a minimum investment of $20,000 or the adjusted basis, whichever is greater. Adjusted basis is the cost of purchase price minus the cost of the land, minus any depreciation, plus any improvement prior to the credit. For example, if the building and land was purchased for $50,000, and the land is valued at $5,000 (and there wasn't any depreciation or improvements), then the adjusted basis would be $45,000. The total potential credit for a tax credit project of up to $50 million of investment is capped at $10 million.

In March 2022, the total annual program allocation for all state tax credit projects per calendar year was raised to $100 million – with 70% available to commercial/other projects and 30% of this amount set aside for owner-occupied residential projects. If that limit is exceeded by approved projects, an apportionment formula will be applied to determine the amount of the credit that will be awarded per project. As a result, the final credit awarded to each project may be a prorated amount based. Because the number of participants and the size of projects vary from year to year, KHC cannot predict in advance what this percentage will be.

What buildings qualify for the credit?

Eligible properties must either be listed in the National Register of Historic Places, or located within a National Register historic district.

What work qualifies for the credit?

The program requires that the applicant complete a "substantial improvement" (spending at least $20,000 for owner-occupied buildings, or spending $20,000 or the adjusted basis for commercial or other buildings) within a consecutive 24-month period. There is no allowance in Kentucky for phased projects longer than 24 months, so each tax credit project should be contained within a two-year period.

A building must be rehabilitated according to a set of technical standards established by the U.S. Secretary of the Interior. Compliance with the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation must be certified by KHC prior to a project start date. The Standards are intended to provide guidance to historic building owners, preservation consultants, architects, contractors, and project reviewers prior to rehabilitation.

The Kentucky Historic Preservation Tax Credit CAN assist non-profits with rehabilitation work

Although non-profit organizations generally have no tax liability, a non-profit can use the transferability option of the program. Ask Kentucky Heritage Council Site Development staff for details!

How does the state tax credit differ from the federal rehabilitation tax credit?

In addition to the Kentucky Historic Preservation Tax Credit Program, the Kentucky Heritage Council administers the Federal Historic Rehabilitation Tax Credit Program in Kentucky. This program offers a federal tax credit of 20% for certified rehabilitation expenses for income-producing properties listed in or eligible for the National Register of Historic Places. Owner-occupied residences are not eligible for the federal tax credit. However, federal and state rehabilitation tax credits can be used in combination for the rehabilitation of commercial or income-producing properties.

What is the process for applying for the state preservation tax credit?

KHC reviews all tax credit projects for eligibility and should be consulted both prior to the start of a project, and then regularly throughout the course of the project, to ensure that the proper standards are followed. Applying for the credit is a three-part process:

PART 1 is the preliminary application, Evaluation of National Register Status, which establishes a property's historic context. The Part 1 determines if the proposed property is listed in the National Register of Historic Places or within a National Register district, and maintains adequate integrity individually or continues to be a contributing resource within a district. Submission requires complete photo documentation of the entire property prior to rehabilitation.

Parts 1 and 2 may be submitted simultaneously. However, any work done prior to certification of these applications by the Kentucky Heritage Council is done at the applicant's own risk, and may result in disqualification of the project. Photographic documentation of the project prior to rehabilitation and at each phase of the certification process is required.

PART 2 is the Description of Rehabilitation, in which the applicant details every aspect of proposed rehabilitation work including estimated material and labor costs, estimated project start and end date, description of any work to be undertaken (for example roof replacement, masonry or foundation repair, window restoration, etc.) and additional detailed photo documentation for any individual features to be impacted during rehabilitation.

PART 3 is the Request for Certification of Completed Work form, submitted once rehabilitation work is complete and including detailed "after" photos of the entire property taken from the same angle as "before" photos. This documentation enables KHC to assess whether work meets the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation.

PART 4 is the Summary of Investment and Election of Credit, the final accounting of QREs form that must be submitted with the Part 3.
